VOL. IX—NO. 2545. NEW-YORK, WEDNESDAY, NOVEMBER 16, 1859. PRICE TWO CENTS.

NEWS BY TELEGRAPH.

FROM WASHINGTON.

The Chinese Treaty—No Dispatches from Minister Ward—Return of Mr. Preston from Spain—Health of Mr. Douglas, &c.

Special Dispatch to the New-York Times.

WASHINGTON, Tuesday, Nov. 15.

Government has received nothing official from Minister WARD since his departure for Peking, but dispatches announcing the ratification of the Treaty are expected by the next steamer.

Dispatches from Madrid announce Mr. PRESTON'S departure for home on leave of absence. Mr. PRESTON objected to returning, but was influenced to do so by ex-Postmaster WICKLIFFE, who deemed his presence in Kentucky, as one of the executors of the late ROBERT WICKLIFFE, absolutely necessary. He will resume his official post at an early day.

No successor to Minister MASON will be appointed until Mr. SLIDELL'S chances for reëlection to the Senate are ascertained.

The Government received no official information of the Brownsville difficulties until yesterday, and then only a letter from the Postmaster at that place. Two additional companies have been ordered from Pensacola to Brownsville. The propriety of taking possession, ad interim, of the Northern States of Mexico is being considered by the Cabinet, and I understand will be recommended in the President's Message to Congress.

EX-President MORA was cordially received by the President and Secretary of State, yesterday, after which he visited the Capitol, and expressed his wonder at its size and magnificence. He left this morning for New York, and in a few weeks will either return to Central America or sail for Europe.

The Spanish Minister gives a grand diplomatic dinner on Saturday, in honor of the birth-day of the Queen of Spain.

Senator DOUGLAS is considered slightly better this afternoon. The statement that the physicians had signed a certificate that his disease was not in the stomach is untrue. Q.

[FROM THE REPORTER OF THE ASSOCIATED PRESS.]

WASHINGTON, Tuesday, Nov. 15.

The Board of Aldermen have refused their assent to set apart next Thursday as one of Thanksgiving.

The condition of Judge DOUGLAS has improved in the last twenty-four hours. His physicians consider him better this morning.

Later from Mexico.

THE SEIZURE OF THE CONDUCTA—MARQUEZ IN THE ASCENDENCY.

NEW-ORLEANS, Tuesday, Nov. 15.

Advices from the City of Mexico to the 5th inst. are at hand. MARQUEZ was expected at the Capital, and would probably assume the Presidency, being the favorite of the Church Party.

MARQUEZ boldly avows the seizure of the $2,800,000 conducta, but alleges that his motives were patriotic.

LOSS OF THE STEAMSHIP ROBERT WATERMAN—YELLOW FEVER—STORM AND FROST ON THE GULF.

NEW-ORLEANS, Monday, Nov. 14.

All efforts to save the steamship Robert Waterman have been abandoned. She is a total loss. Her cargo was purchased by fishermen.

There were three deaths by yellow fever in this city last week.

There has been a heavy gale along the Gulf coast, and ice has formed in this city.

Snow fell in Mississippi on Sunday.

Affairs in Massachusetts.

THE CONTUMACIOUS LIQUOR AGENT.

BOSTON, Tuesday, Nov. 15.

MR. BURNHAM, the contumacious State Liquor Agent, having signified his readiness to produce the books of the Agency, was to-day taken from jail, and brought before the House, but at his urgent request time was given him to consult counsel in one of the ante-rooms. When finally brought before the House he tried to get still further time, and on the House urging a direct answer, he refused to give up the books. He subsequently asked leave to amend his answer, and say "Yes," with certain explanations. The House thought it had been trifled with sufficiently, and sent him back to jail, where he will probably remain the twenty-five days, unless he previously delivers the books to the Sergeant-at-arms.

The following is the weekly statement of the Boston Banks:

Rise in the Ohio River.

NAVIGATION RESUMED FOR THE SEASON.

PARKERSBURGH, Va., Tuesday, Nov. 15.

The Ohio River at this point, two hundred miles below Pittsburgh, is eight feet deep at present, and is rising. PITTSBURGH, Tuesday, Nov. 15.

The Ohio River still continues to rise, and is now in good navigable order, with seven feet of water in the channel. Abundance of boats are now in port, and there is any amount of freight ready for transportation. Several boats are now loading.

Navigation may be considered as resumed for the Winter.

The Hard Central Committee at Albany.

ALBANY, Tuesday, Nov. 15.

The meeting of the Wood or Hard Central Committee was advertised to meet at Congress Hall at noon to-day. The only delegate present was Hon BENJAMIN F. RAE, Ex-Member of the Assembly, solitary and alone. He returns to New-York to-day without taking any action on the election of the Charleston Delegation.

The Grain-Elevator at Buffalo.

FATAL ACCIDENT FROM THE FALL OF THE RUINS.

BUFFALO, Tuesday, Nov. 15.

A portion of the ruins of the elevator burned last week fell this afternoon, burying ten or twelve laborers who were engaged in removing the damaged grain. Two dead bodies have been taken out, and three or four of the injured.

Burning of the Steamer Island Belle.

MIDDLETOWN, Tuesday, Nov. 15.

The steamer Island Belle was burned at her dock in Essex last night, and is a total loss. It is supposed that her burning is the work of an incendiary. She formerly ran from New-York to Greenport, but lately has been on the Hartford and New-London route, in connection with the L. Boardman.

Gov. Corwin Candidate for the Speakership.

CINCINNATI, Tuesday, Nov. 15.

There was an error in yesterday's dispatch relative to Gov. CORWIN and the Speakership of the House of Representatives. The friends of Gov. CORWIN desire it to be understood that he is a candidate for Speaker.

Death of Ex-Gov. Epaphroditus Ransom.

ST. LOUIS, Tuesday, Nov. 15.

A dispatch says that Ex-Gov. RANSOM, Receiver of Public Money at Fort Scott, Kansas, died on Friday.

Accident on the Harlem Railroad.

CROTON FALLS, Tuesday, Nov. 15.

The up freight-train was run into by a wood-train this afternoon, smashing one car, but injuring no person. The mail-train was delayed for two hours.

The Sailing of the America.

BOSTON, Tuesday, Nov. 15.

The mails for the Royal Mail steamship America, for Liverpool, viâ Halifax, will close here at 9 o'clock to-morrow morning, but she will not sail until about noon.

Correction.

The New-Orleans dispatch of news from Brownsville, published yesterday, instead of "the letters from MARKS & Co. came previous to the Corpus Christi account," should read cause a disbelief in the Corpus Christi account.

THE NEW-YORK ELECTION.

The Official Canvass.

D. FLOYD JONES PROBABLY ELECTED SECRETARY OF STATE.

The State election returns begin to assume an official shape since the canvass made by the County Supervisors, yesterday. In this City and County and Kings and Erie Counties, the canvass was not completed. About one-half the other counties have been heard from officially, the majorities in which, added to the well-authenticated, though not always exact, reports from the remaining counties, place Mr. FLOYD JONES, the Democratic candidate for Secretary of State, 563 votes ahead of Mr. LEAVENWORTH, the Republican candidate. A dispatch from Albany dated 10 o'clock last night, would seem to leave the result in greater doubt than our own table, as between the Argus and Evening Journal figures; but as neither paper was probably advised of the official from Queens County, (received here by private hand,) and which increases the majority for JONES nearly 400 over all previous calculations, we give the dispatch no particular importance.

Seven of the City Wards were canvassed yesterday, the First, Second, Third, Fourth, Sixth, Seventh and Thirteenth, the aggregate result of which makes a difference of only five votes from the unofficial return of 20,069 hitherto inserted in the New-York and Albany tables.

[BY TELEGRAPH.]

ALBANY, Tuesday, Nov. 15—10 P. M.

The Atlas and Argus to this hour figures up the election returns so as to place JONES 204 ahead of LEAVENWORTH; for whom the Evening Journal still claims 102 majority.

MURDER IN AURORA, OHIO.—On the 8th inst., Mr. A. BALDWIN, an old and much respected citizen of Aurora, Portage County, was fatally stabbed by hi nephew, named PRICE. Mr. B. died the next day, and PRICE has been lodged in jail at Ravenna to answer to the crime of murder. The circumstances of the assassination were as follows: PRICE was intemperate in his habits, and had drank enough to make him irritable, when Mr. BALDWIN advised him to either entirely leave off drinking or quit the place. PRICE in his anger ran into a shoe-shop near by, obtained a shoe-knife, and returning plunged it into the abdomen of his uncle. Until he saw the blood dripping from the knife, Mr. B. supposed he had been struck with a closed hand. When he found himself stabbed he called for help and staggered to his house. A lad of a dozen years witnessed the blow, but was too much frightened to render any assistance.

When arrested PRICE expressed the hope that he had killed his victim. Both the parties were over 50 years of age, and PRICE was under many obligations to BALDWIN for favors rendered running back some thirty years.

The funeral of Mr. BALDWIN was one of the largest and most impressive ever witnessed in Aurora.—Cleveland Leader.

The examination of John M. Worthington at Phenix, R. I., on the charge of being concerned in the murder of Burrill Arnold, resulted on Tuesday in his discharge from custody, there not appearing sufficient evidence to hold him for trial.

FROM THE PACIFIC.

Gossip of San Francisco—A Runaway Danseuse—The Guano Island Case.

From our own Corres ondent.

SAN FRANCISCO, Friday, Oct. 21, 1859.

Quite an excitement occurred here yesterday afternoon, after the departure of the steamers for Panama, consequent upon the disappearance of a little girl—a precocious singer, dancer, and actress, named LOUISA PAULLIN. The girl, who is eleven years of age was rapidly making her way in the profession which her parents had marked out for her, and had won the kind sympathies of thousands of admirers by the apparent artless simplicity of her manners, and the readiness with which she sustained her parents in their poverty. About three months ago Mr. JAMES PAULLIN, her father, a well known actor of this city, was thrown from a buggy in Stockton-street, badly fracturing his leg, thus confining him to his bed, in a helpless condition, from that time to the present. Reduced to the utmost straits, the salary which LOUISA received at the Union Theatre, amounting to about $4 a day, served to support them, and indeed for two years her earnings have done much towards defraying the household expenses. She has always manifested the utmost affection for her parents. Soon after the steamers left, yesterday, they were informed that LOUISA had left in the Uncle Sam, with a young man about 22 years of age, named GEORGE SERTZ, or SERVEY, who had been employed by her father at his house.

It appears that some months since, SERVEY was observed by Mr. PAULLIN to be too intimate with his daughter, and for that reason he discharged him, after which it was supposed that the intimacy had ceased.

That the affair was preconcerted, and had been for some time arranged, there can be no doubt. On Tuesday night LOUISA proposed to a lady in the city (with whose family she had been accustomed to sometimes pass the night) to pay her a visit, and pass Wednesday night. The lady proposed Thursday instead, but LOUISA objected, and preferred the former night, the reason of which will be apparent. On Wednesday morning, then, she arrayed herself in two suits of under-clothing, and left her father's house for that in which she was to sleep. She had, meantime, imparted her projected elopement to a confidant, as SERVEY had also to a friend of his. She passed the night at the house of the lady, and in the morning left, saying that she intended to go out home. She repaired, however, to the steamer, where she was to meet SERVEY. She had with her a small bag, in which were a number of toys, dolls, &c., which she had brought from home, ostensibly to amuse herself with. Mistaking the steamers, she went on board the Sonora, where, finding her blunder, she was observed by a policeman to throw her bag on to the wharf, and then came ashore herself; he, supposing she was returning after taking leave of some friend bound home, took no further notice of her. She then went on board the Uncle Sam at Mission-street wharf, where she met SERVEY, and left with him.

Servey is an ordinary-looking fellow, and a complete loafer. His father kept a saloon on Second-street, a few months ago, known as "The Isthmus," which he sold out, and left for the Eastern States. The son soon after sold a house belonging to his father for $800, which he doubt lessintends to use for the joint benefit of himself and LOUISA. The Servey family reside in Rome, New-York. By the Overland Mail, today, letters are forwarded, with directions to telegraph North at once. Mr. TIBAULT, of this city, has drawn out for Mr. PAULLIN a power of attorney, which the latter has signed, authorizing Hon. HENRY NICHOLS, of New-York, to take possession of the girl wherever and wherever she may be found.

The affair has plunged the parents of the girl in the deepest grief, the more so as they can give no reasonable explanation of the affair. It cannot be called a "love match," for the girl is but a child in years and disposition, as well as manners.

Almost the entire business portion of the town of Coulterville was destroyed by fire early yesterday morning.

One-sixth of WALSH & Co.'s claim in the Wabash mines sold yesterday for $40,000. More ore has been sent to San Francisco, some twenty tons in all, worth at least $2,000 per ton.

The mail for the Atlantic States and Europe, which went forward yesterday in the Uncle Sam, was the smallest sent while Mr. WELLER has been in the San Francisco Post-office. It numbered but 26,701 letters, and a proportionable number of newspapers and other like matter. The postage paid on the letters amounts to $1,511 19, of which $1,039 69 was in stamps, and $481 58 in money; the latter, of course being for foreign letters, which are pre-paid in cash. The Postmaster accounts for this unusually small mail by the facts that a very large overland mail was sent the last time, numbering about 5,000 letters, and that many persons are now writing by the expresses in preference to the mails.

A coroner's inquest held upon the body of a man supposed to be G. H. MOORE, of Burlington, Vt., yesterday found a verdict of suicide by laudanum. The deceased left New-York for this place on the 6th of May last. He had been laboring under a great depression of spirits since he came to this city, ten days ago. He had been working for a Mr. DODGE, at Petaluma, and came to San Francisco with the object of leaving on the steamer to-day for the East. Mr. DODGE was his brother-in-law.

Judge HOFFMAN, of the United States Court, yesterday rendered a decision in the Johnson's Island guano case. The facts are as follows: The libelants, claiming to own the guano on Johnston's Island, made a contract with the ship Adelaide to go there and load guano, the claimants binding themselves to have some laborers and three lighters at the Island. The contract, which was in writing, provided that either party violating the agreement should be responsible in the "penal sum" of $35,000. Before the departure of the vessel it appeared that there was a dispute about the ownership of the island, and there was room to doubt whether CHADWICK and his party could be considered as in possession of the island, so the owners of the Adelaide refused to send her. Thereupon, CHADWICK and a party libelled the ship, and claimed the $35,000 as liquidated damages. "Penal damages" and "liquidated damages" are two terms whose meaning is well fixed in law. If A bind himself to B to do a certain act, giving bond in a "penal sum" of $1,000, then on his failure B can under that bond recover all the damages he can prove up to $1,000, and no more; but if A bind himself to do the act, or pay $1,000 "liquidated damages," then on failure to do the act he is liable to pay the $1,000 and no more, no matter whether it has suffered much little damage by the non-performance of the contract on A's part. In this Johnson's Island case CHADWICK and party failed to prove any damages. They did not show that they had any laborers or lighters at the island, though in case of failure to provide them they were liable under the contract ro the penal sum of $35,000. They did show by Dr. LANEWEERT that a certain specimen of the Johnson Island guano would be worth $35 or $40 per ton in New-York—but to assume that, therefore, the libelants would have made a fortune out of their venture, was too much like counting chickens before hatching. There is nothing in the decision or the law to prevent libelants from chartering other vessels and making fortunes yet out of Johnson's Island.

HEAVY RAINS IN SAN FRANCISCO—INTERESTING FROM THE SANDWICH ISLANDS—SAFETY OF THE CREW AND PASSENGERS OF THE MASTIFF.

ST. LOUIS, Tuesday, Nov. 15.

The Overland Mail of the 24th reached this city last night.

Heavy rains fell at San Francisco on the 23d, and there were indications of continued wet weather.

A fire at Yreka, California, on the 22d, destroyed $50,000 worth of property.

A rich silver mine had been discovered near Fort Tejon.

Gov. WELLER would appoint a United States Senator before the departure of the steamer of the 5th of November. It was supposed that he would make a selection from outside politicians.

Arrived at San Francisco, Oct. 22, ships Levanter BROWN, New-York; May 21, Uncowah, KIRBY, do. June 2, Webfoot, HODGE, do.; May 17, Southern Cross HOWES, Boston; June 10, Maria, from Shanghai, and Peru, from Newcastle, N. S. W. Sailed from San Francisco, 23d, ships Peruvian and Twilight, for Callao.

The dates from the Sandwich Islands are to the 3d of October. The prospects of business were poor, and the community was troubled by reports from the Atlantic States relative to the cheapness of coal oil, which it was thought would diminish the demand for whale oil, and injure the whaling business of Honolulu. Some of the sugar plantations were paying moderately, but the coffee crop was an entire failure.

The number of whaleships arrived to Oct. 1 was only ten.

The following American vessels had arrived at Honolulu since Sept. 3: Raduga, Sylvia, Flying Eagle, Aspasia, Siam, Moneta, and Black Sea. Sailed from Honolulu, Sept. 17, Flying Eagle, for Hong Kong; 24th, Raduga, for Hilo.

The British ship Achilles, Capt. HART, which arrived at Honolulu Sept. 27, reported that the American clipper ship Mastiff, Capt. JOHNSON, from San Francisco to Hong Kong, having on board 180 passengers, of whom 175 were Chinese, was burned at sea on the 15th of September. All the passengers, with the exception of one Chinaman, who was smothered, were safely taken off by the Achilles, and conveyed to Honolulu. Among the passengers were R. H. DANA, of Boston; C. C. HARRIS, GEORGE CLIFFORD, J. H. C. RICHMOND and M. SCHOENBERN. The Chinese are said to have lost a large amount of treasure. The cargo, consisting of about five hundred tons, was lost. The fire originated between decks, from some opium-smoking Chinamen allowing sparks to get among the combustible articles, which soon set the whole ship in a blaze. The escape of the passengers was owing to the intrepidity and coolness of Capt. JOHNSON and his officers, and the fortunate appearance of the Achilles. The Mastiff was a Boston first-class clipper, valued at $90,000, and was insured for $80,000 in Boston. The Court at Honolulu awarded Capt. HART, of the Achilles, $7,500 salvage on the specie, the balance of which was shipped on the ship Ella and Eliza, which was to sail for Hong Kong Oct. 7, with 100 Chinese passengers.

FROM SALT LAKE CITY.

From Our Own Correspondent.

GREAT SALT LAKE CITY, U. T., Wednesday, Oct. 18, 1859.

I have seen many incorrect statements in relation to the Camp Floyd mule sale going the rounds of the newspapers. Being acquainted with the facts, truth and justice require that I shall give them to the public. A Washington correspondent of the Missouri Republican says that the reason for ordering the animals sold upon such short notice was on account of the great mortality among them, as shown by official reports. This could not have been the reason, for, at the time the order for the sale was given, the mules were in as good and healthy condition as it was possible for animals to be. It is true that when the army arrived at Camp Floyd, a year previous, the mules were so poor and weak that many of them fell down, and from poverty and exhaustion in their long march were unable to rise again, and in consequence, during the Winter, many of them died; but since April last, they have been fat, strong and healthy. So this could not even have been a reason to justify the sale, let alone the short notice given.

Mr. HOLLIDAY, who was the largest purchaser, publishes over his own signature in the San Francisco Bulletin, as a reason for the sale, the enormous expense of keeping the animals, and states that the estimate made by Col. CROSMAN for keeping the 2,500 mules that were sold for the quarter commencing the first day of July last, to be $475,000. This is also incorrect; the estimate made for keeping all the public animals in Utah, both at Camp Floyd and at Fort Bridger, consisting of horses, mules and oxen, and numbering 5,465 animals, for one year, was $474,004 33. The reasons for making estimates for the whole year at that time, were to have funds here in order to purchase forage, &c., during the Summer and Fall, as it cannot be obtained in Winter, and would be much more expensive in the Spring. All the reasons that have been given to the public for this sale are without foundation in fact, and indeed I cannot imagine what fact the Secretary of War can advance in justification of his order.

During the session of Judge SINCLAIR'S Court here, a man named FERGUSON, a Gentile, was found guilty of murder, and sentenced to be hung on the 28th of this month. It will be alleged by the Mormons that law can be administered in Utah, and they will refer to this as an instance. I do not deny that Gentiles can be punished here; but, while this man is guilty of a foul murder and ought to die, I am unwilling that on account of his punishment the Mormons shall have credit for aiding in the administration of the law, when so many of their own people, who are equally guilty, go unpunished. A strenuous effort is being made to have his sentence commuted, but while the Governor may reprieve or pardon, he has no power, under the organic act, to commute the sentence of a court; and even if he had the power he ought not to exercise it, for where the arm of the law is so weak, public interest requires that when a conviction is had the sentence of the Court shall be executed.

I am informed that MACKENZIE, the forger, who was sentenced to the Penitentiary at the last term of Court in Judge ECKLES' District, has a shop there where he works at his trade, engraving, during the day, and at night comes home to his family in the city, a distance of four miles. This may seem strange to people in the States, but it is explained in a few words—the keeper is a Mormon, and MACKENZIE wears the endowment robes. This is a subject of common remark on the streets, and I apprehend the facts are well known to the Governor. Why he does not appoint another keeper, and adopt measures to secure convicts cannot be explained upon any other ground than that he is either absolutely a Mormon, as some of the Eastern papers have charged him with being, or else he has bargained with them to sell justice.

On Sunday night last a man named VINCENT was murdered here; he was a gambler by profession, and one of the most desperate character. Nothing further is known of the murder than that he was found next morning lying in the street, with a bullet-hole through his head, the ball having entered at the back. And on Monday night another man was killed, but I have not been able to learn either his name or the circumstances of his murder; further than that, like VINCENT, he was found next morning with a bullet-hole through him. This makes seven men that have been killed in the streets here since the commencement of Judge SINCLAIR'S Court, in the latter part of July last. Mormons killed six of them, the other one was killed by FERGUSON, who is now under sentence of death, and he is the only one who has been arrested.

While political discussions are running high, and Popular Sovereignty is the theme discussed all over the country, we are anxious to know whether the Democratic Party proposes to apply that doctrine to Utah. If they do, then they must consent for a theocratic despotism to be maintained in the very heart of our Territory, and worse than a despotism—it is an organized Government that loftily assumes to be national, and yet supports itself by robbery and murder. A majority of the Gentiles here are Popular Sovereignty men of the strictest school, but we never dreamed of applying it to an unwilling people, and I think that there is sufficient evidence before the people to justify me in saying that the Mormons do not want to govern themselves, or even to live under a republican form of government; they want no other form of government than a theocracy, and they will have no other so long as they can avoid it. Then the issue is before the people of the United States, "Shall we govern the Mormons, while upon our own soil, against their consent, or shall we permit them to perpetuate the theocracy they have established?" This question, though politicians may seek to avoid it, must be met, and when it is settled, then the means of doing either the one thing or the other can easily be determined upon. The proposition to buy them out cannot be entertained for a moment, for that would be paying a premium for rebellion, and an acknowledgment that our form of government is incapable of sustaining itself. Military Items—The Colorado—Miscellaneous.

From the Arizonian, Oct. 27.

On the 14th inst. Corporal GORMAN, and Private CAULFIELD, of G's Company, 1st Dragoons, deserted from Fort Buchanan, while out in charge of the Fort herd, taking with them three horses, arms and accoutrements, and fled into the State of Sonora, where they met with a reception very different from that which they expected. Some thirty-six hours after their flight they were pursued by the indefatigable Arizonian "VIDOCQ," JAMES GRAYDON, of Casa Blanco, and overtaken after a hard chase, at Barajito, Sonora. It appears that these misguided men employed some Mexicans to guide them down towards Guaymas, who, in a lonely part of the highway, fell upon and robbed them. One of the robbers snatched GORMAN'S pistol and discharged its contents at his head, the ball passing through his hat, which sent him to the "right about in double quick time," leaving his companion, who was less fortunate, in the hands of the highwaymen. When CAULFIELD was again discovered, he was found hanging to a mesquoite tree, suspended by means of his own pocket-kerchief, and it is supposed HE may have been driven, by his forlorn and desperate condition, to self-destruction, as the thieves had plundered him of his horse and everything about him. GORMAN and his horse were recovered and brought back to the Fort by his pursuers, after a hard ride of near three hundred miles, performed in sixty hours. This is another sad illustration of the kind of sympathy which Americans will receive in Mexico, as long as barbarous retaliation is the "order of the day" on both sides of the boundary line.

On the 16th, a party of twenty-five dragoons were sent from Fort Buchanan to protect the inhabitants of Tubac and its vicinity, against an imaginary attack from the Apaches, who were reported to be marching in incredibly large numbers, for the purpose of "cleaning out" the valley of the Santa Cruz. At last accounts, the scout had not arrived, and the presence of the troops was allaying the fears of those who were stampeded by this silly canard.

Droves of sheep have been passing through Tucson in the past few days for California. One flock alone numbering some 46,000 sheep; they were mostly from the Rio Grande, in New-Mexico.

Some days since an American, name unknown, working on a ranche near Tubac, had a difficulty with a tame Apache, also living there, who used his knife freely and cut the American in a very savage manner. Cause unknown; but supposed, as usual, bad whisky. The man is doing well.

FROM BERMUDA.

Three Governors in One Year—Luxuriance of Vegetation—Fruit and Vegetable Crops—Total Wreck of the American Bark Antelope.

Correspondence of the New-York Times:

BERMUDA, Saturday, Nov. 5, 1859.

If frequency of a change of rulers be a means whereby a country may be expected to advance in prosperity, the Bermudas ought to flourish rapidly. We have had here no fewer than three Governors within twelve months. Gov. MURRAY, after five years' rule, asked for leave of absence to enable him to visit England. He left in June last. As soon as he embarked, Col. HEMPHILL, of the Twenty-sixth Regiment, Commander of the Forces, assumed the office of Administrator of the Government. His title to this step lay in a regulation, sent out by the Colonial Minister, some years since, that the officer commanding the troops should assume the Government whenever the post became vacant by the absence of the Governor on leave, or by his removal, resignation or death.

The face of the country never looked more beautiful than it does at this time. Rains having fallen at short intervals, the meadows and cultivated parts of the islands are now clothed in verdure of the richest luxuriance. The Winter fruits are ripening rapidly, such as shaddocks, oranges, &c. The planters are now about to sow onion seed for the usual Spring crop of that esculent. About one million of pounds of onions were raised here last Spring.

A fine American bark, belonging to the enterprising house of TROWBRIDGE, of New-Haven, has been stranded upon our reefs. This vessel is the bark Antelope, RHODES, master. She left New-York on the 12th October with an assorted inboard cargo, and a deckload of horses and mules, bound to Barbados. Within five days from leaving port—on the 17th—she ran upon the reefs at the west end of these Islands; and so fast was she held by the sharp coralline bottom that all efforts to extricate her were soon seen to be useless; a heavy sea running at the time caused her to bilge quickly and settle down firmly in her rugged bed, where she now lies a pitiful wreck. No time was lost in saving the cargo. The horses and mules were all conveyed in safety to the shore, and are in stables here awaiting a vessel from New-York to take them on to the West Indies. Much of the inboard cargo was damaged by sea-water; but a considerable portion was landed in a dry state from lighters. The whole of the cargo (excepting the live stock) as well as the materials and hull of the ship, were sold at public auction, on the 26th and 27th Oct., and 4th instant. Not fewer than five hundred persons attended the sale, and the bidding was very spirited. The flour (not damaged) sold within a few pence of $7 a barrel, and the damaged at from $4 to $6. Other breadstuffs sold similarly well. The hull of the barque, as it lay on the reefs, was sold for £25 sterling. The salvage to the wreckers has been adjusted by a bench of magistrates, under a law of the colony, passed to meet such cases. Thirty-six boats of different sizes were engaged in saving the cargo; and the award of the magistrates to the boats and their crews is as follows Forty-five per cent. on the gross sales of the hay; 27½ per cent. on the value of the pork; and on all the other cargo, including the materials of the vessel (but not including the live stock) 25 per cent. on the gross sales thereof. An agreement was made by the agents of the Antelope with the owners of the boats to carry the mules and horses safely to the shore for £2 15s. sterling for each horse and mule; and this agreement was made binding by the magistrates It was a wise precaution, this head-money for saving the stock, as had salvage been adjusted in the usual way, on that part of the cargo, about one-half of the value of the beasts would have gone into the pockets of the salvors. All the proceedings connected with this wreck have been well managed.

American ship Orlando, FRISBEE, which put in here in distress, 15th October, from Boston, bound to St. Domingo, is refitting. American brig George Washington, which put in here 20th September, from Boston, bound to Galveston, is also refitting. American ship Messenger, HOOPER, from New-York, bound to Valparaiso, put in here 17th October, very leaky, and has discharged cargo. British schooner Peerless, DOE, arrived here from New-York on the 3d, and Princess Royal on the 4th, also, from New-York. Brig Penguin will sail for New-York on the 7th inst.

Yours, truly, ***

THE TROUBLES AT BROWNSVILLE.

Letter from the Postmaster—Communications Cut Off.

POST-OFFICE, BROWNSVILLE, (Texas,) Wednesday, Nov. 2, 1859.

Chief Clerk Post-office Department:

DEAR SIR: It becomes my duty to inform you that mail-routes 8,606 and 8,595 are made impassable by the forces acting under the bandit CORTINAS. This force commands the country around in every direction to within 400 yards of our city market.

Accompanying this, please find the affidavit of Mr. RANUERS, mail-carrier on route 8,606, also letters and envelopes, and post bills the same, and in the same condition as they came to this office on the 25th ult., except that the letters have been delivered, and the envelopes retained as they came broken, and one letter from R. G. City, which was not broken, and was delivered. The bag was cut and mended. I send you the bag.

The mails on route 8,606, due on the 28th and 31st ultimo, and on route 8,595, due on the 27th and 30th ultimo, have not arrived at this office. We are reliably informed that the mails on both these trips and both these routes, as well as the mails from this office on both routes for the last trip, are in the possession of CORTINAS, and that he has the carriers prisoners.

The mail on route 8,605 is brought and carried on the right bank of the river to its mouth, and it has, until now, succeeded in getting through unmolested. No letters are now mailed to go by routes 8,606 or 8,595.

All the carriers are prisoners. Any attempt to send a mail by either route would certainly fail; and on the 31st ult. and 1st inst. no mails were dispatched by either route. They are regarded by me as closed for the present, and I accordingly engaged no substitute carriers.

IMPORTANT FROM CHINA.

THE AMERICAN MINISTER AT PEKING.

From the North China Herald, Aug. 22.

The United States steam-frigate Powhatan, Flag-Officer JOSEPH TATNALL, and Capt. G. F. PEARSON commanding, and having on board His Excellency JOHN E. WARD, United States Minister, has just arrived at Shanghae from the Pei-ho, after a passage of three and a half days. From her officers we learn the following items of news.

On the 16th ult., while the Powhatan was anchored off Pei-tang, there arrived an imperial edict ordering that the American Minister and suite of twenty should be escorted with all honor to Peking, and that they should leave Pei-tang upon any day after the 19th. This edict was in answer to a communication of the American Minister, informing the authorities that he was present, and ready to exchange his treaty at any time and place which they might appoint.

Shortly before the arrival of this edict, the smoke of a steamer was discovered to the southward and eastward, which proved to be the Russian paddle-wheel America, having on board his Excellency, Count MOURAVIEFF, the Governor-General of Siberia, traveling incog. She anchored near the Powhatan, and upon the 21st sent a courier to Peking with communications for the resident Minister. Upon the 17th, a Russian gun-boat also arrived, reporting that several others were to follow, but these did not make their appearance.

On the morning of the 20th, Mr. WARD and suite landed at Pei-tang, where they were received by the escort and conducted to Peking with every show of respect. They first traveled forty-five miles across the country in covered carts, striking the Pei-ho at a village called Pei-tsang, some ten miles above Tien-tsing; and thence proceeded in junks to Toong-chau, distant twelve miles from Peking, of which it is the port. There they again took carts to the Capital. The entire trip occupied eight days and a half, five of which were passed upon the river. They passed not less than six or eight barriers between Pei-tsang and Toong-chau, none of them, however, being in repair or backed by forts. The boatmen said they were partly to stop the English, and partly to afford shelter to junks when the ice was breaking up.

The Legation remained in Peking fifteen days, during which time they were confined to their quarters. Not, however, as prisoners, for they were at liberty at any moment to walk out, but the Commissioners refused the use of horses and guides, leaving it optional with Mr. WARD to grant permission to walk out or not, as he saw fit. They would, doubtless, however, have closed the gates entirely, had not that gentleman taken a firm stand at the very first interview, informing KWEI-LIANG that as soon as his movements should be at all restricted he should close all intercourse, and demand his return escort.

It seems that the Emperor was very anxious to see Mr. WARD, but that he also insisted upon his performing the Ko-Tow, which, being against the principles of his excellency, was positively refused. The result of this was that, upon the fourteenth day of their stay, it was finally concluded to receive the President's letter at Peking, and to send his excellency back to Pei-Tang, to exchange the treaty, and the next day they returned accordingly.

During their stay in Peking they saw nothing of the Russians, but received several letters from them. The first of these was six days going from one end of the city to the other, having evidently been detained by the authorities.

Arrived at Pei-tang on the 16th, the treaties were exchanged, and an English prisoner, named JOHN POWELL, given up. This man, who was an O. S. on board the Highflyer, and who, with a sapper by the name of Thos. McQUEEN, had been captured on June 25, fearing for his life, had proclaimed himself an American. The Chinese informed Mr. WARD of this, and intimated their readiness to give him up as an American, if he would demand him. This, however, the latter could not do, as he had been taken fighting under the flag of another nation. Anxious, however, to serve the poor fellow, he intimated to them that it would be a personal favor if they would turn him over, and as such it was done. He is now on board of the Powhatan. Of the sapper, nothing more is known than that he was wounded in the arm, was doing well, and is still a prisoner. The Chinese seemed generally anxious to know what the English would do next year.

MEETING OF THE PLENIPOTENTIARIES.

A correspondent of the China mail gives a detailed description of Mr. WARD's sojourn in Peking from which we take the following:

"About 11 o'clock the next day, Mr. WARD, attended by only three of his party, went to the public hall, where the Imperial Commissioners met him, surrounded by a great crowd of officials of every shade of button, all dressed in their easy Summer costume. KWEILIANG looked more hale than when at Shanghai, and said that his journey of thirty-six days had been on the whole pleasant. He soon began, however, upon weightier matters, and vindicated the late acts of his Government in respect of its plans for the exchange of the three treaties. He declared that the Emperor had a right to obstruct the channel of his own rivers, and had done so at the mouth of the Pei-ho to prevent foreign ships ascending to Tien-tsing; that he would have been blameworthy if all ingress had been closed, but on the contrary every arrangement had been made for conducting all the foreign ministers to Peking by way of Pei-tang. The English Envoy, however, had not gone to that place, but had tried to force his way through the barriers at Taku, even when warned of the consequences; and that by so doing the English had broken the treaty and not the Chinese, upon whom the responsibility of the violation did not rest. He then went on to compare the refusal of the English and French Ministers at Shanghae to see him and his colleague, after having waited in that region many months for that purpose, with the visits which had taken place between them and the American Envoy, and his offer of a ship of war to bring them up the Gulf, which the regulations of their own Government prevented them from accepting; and concluded his harangue with the remarks that the hostile feelings of the English were also seen in their bringing so large, if not larger force, to exchange their treaty than they had to make it, while the peaceful designs of the Americans were proved by their coming in only one vessel.

This aged statesman could certainly be excused for this expression of his feelings and views on the recent events, in which he had borne so large a part, at any place; but it appeared to his foreign auditors that he was at the time talking rather to his countrymen in the room. The sang-froid of some of them in taking off their hats and seating themselves at side-tables, led to the inference that they were much higher in rank and influence than their crystal buttons indicated, and the premier must explain his acts before them in unmistaken terms. He then proceeded to state that as the Emperor had a regard to the Americans, he wished to do them honor by granting them an audience, and it only remained for the parties then present to settle upon the manner of approaching the throne. Without going into needless details upon the interesting conversations which ensued on this topic, at this and subsequent interviews, it will be better to recapitulate the main arguments used by the Chinese functionaries in explaining and urging their views, as these show most clearly the real nature of the ceremony used at the Chinese Court.

The different estimation in which the Emperor regarded a friendly and an equal nation like the United States, whose Chief Magistrate was, in every respect equal to himself, from tributary nations like Siam, Corea, Lewchew, or Annam, was repeatedly referred to by KWEILIANG. He sometimes styled the President Hohwangti, or Great Emperor, and sometimes President, (a word which he has learned,) and occasionally klumchu, or princely ruler, to prove his respect for him. Such being the relations between the two countries, the ko-tau or regular form of obeisance required of envoys from those nations, i. e., san-kwei-kiu-hoh, "three kneelings and nine knocks," would not be expected; "but," said the Judge, "one kneeling and three knocks will do for a friendly Power." This remark was not taken up by the Commissioners, nor was the ceremony, even in this mitigated form, again referred to, so that it cannot be said that the ko-tau in any shape was demanded of Mr. WARD by the Chinese as a preliminary to his audience of their Sovereign.

THE AMERICAN MINISTER REFUSES TO KNEEL TO THE EMPEROR.

To this Mr. WARD replied, that while he entertained the greatest respect for his Majesty, and in that only felt what the President himself had expressed in the letter of which he was the bearer, he wished to declare in the plainest terms that, highly as he would regard an audience, and important as he deemed it under the present circumstances, still he had never asked it, and the treaty said nothing about it, but he would not kneel when he came before the throne; he could only salute his Majesty as he did his own ruler, and as Ministers of the United States did the sovereigns of all other nations when they saw them. He knelt only as an act of worship before God, and would never do so before any man. They were subjects of the Emperor, and must obey his ritual; but he represented a nation whose dignity he could not compromise by such a compliance; and furthermore, true respect must always proceed from the heart, and if the outward ceremony was not voluntary it was hypocrisy. He would bow very low, and even nine times if that would add to the solemnity in their view; or he would stand uncovered during the whole audience, while the Emperor sat. More than this he would never willingly perform; while this form of salutation exhibited all the respect he felt towards the President, which they must themselves acknowledge was quite as great as he could feel towards the Emperor of China.

The Commissioners answered that if they were in the United States they would conform to any requirements made of them at an audience with the President, and that the American Minister ought to act on the principle in their country; that they could not show respect to their sovereign otherwise than by kneeling, for anything short of that was absolutely nothing in their estimation, and would be deemed so by the Emperor. He would regard it as an indignity for a Minister from a friendly nation to come to his capital and refuse to see him, when he required so much less of him than he did his own courtiers; besides which the President would be offended with him for not showing proper respect to his Envoy. In some European courts, even in the English, persons kneit before the sovereign when presented to him, and it is no more derogatory to do so here than there. They did not hesitate to say that they regarded the homage paid their monarch as of the same sort given to gods, and would even burn incense to the President, as well as make the ko-tau to him, if required at Washington, in order to manifest entire respect. "You are a plenipotentiary," said HWASHANA, turning to Mr. WARD, "and certainly have full powers to do such an act."

"I am not invested with powers sufficient to enable me to change the laws and usages of my country, and cannot do anything to degrade it," was Mr. WARD's reply.

THE POINT OF ETIQUETTE NOT TO BE OVERCOME.

The Chinese Commissioners were obliged to go out twelve miles to the Summer residence of YUEN-MING-YUEN to report to His Majesty, who was passing the hot weather there, and no reply was expected from them till the 4th; but the next morning the Judge, with a countenance anything but joyful, unexpectedly appeared. He had come from the Summer palace, where he and the Commissioners had been all night, with a plan which he thought would succeed. This was that they should address Mr. WARD a letter stating that the Emperor intended to honor him with an audience to receive the President's letter; he should then reply that he was willing, if granted the honor, to make his respects to His Majesty in the same manner that he would before the President, neither diminishing nor adding thereto. There was of course no objection to this procedure, and the drafts of both documents were made out and the Judge took copies away with him. The detail of the expedient to be observed was also explained, which was, that when the Minister came towards the throne, the table on which the President's letter was to be placed standing between the two, he should bow as low as he had represented, and then two chamberlains would approach and raise him up, with the exclamation, "don't kneel!" He would then present the letter by placing it on the table, from whence it would be taken by another chamberlain, who, on his knees, would hand it to the Emperor.

The Judge went away with a happier visage than he came, and the next dispatch from Kweiliang was looked for with impatience. Instead of the expected document, SIEH himself returned next morning to tell us that the Commissioners had been outvoted; and his Majesty's decision was, that unless the American Minister would either touch one knee or his fingers to the ground, he would not see him. While this concession was refused as being much more than an American representative ever performed before his own or any other ruler, it was again declared that in this persistence in our own usages there was no disrespect intended to the Emperor, who must of course be the final judge of what he deemed suitable to his own dignity. The question of an audience was thus settled, so far as the American embassy was interested, after five days' earnest discussion. During the whole of it, the Chinese Commissioners made use of nothing but fair argument. They never even alluded to the helpless position of twenty foreigners as a reason for their complying with a ceremony which seemed to them doubtless the extreme of liberality. It is impossible to decide the question satisfactorily, but the final obstacle to the audience seems to have been the conviction in the minds of the Chinese, that Mr. WARD would not do what was really done at European Courts; and what they declared the English Minister had promised last year he would do, viz., perform the same ceremony before the Emperor which he would before the Queen. The Judge remarked once, that he was certain that the Ministers had come to an understanding at Tien-tsin last year respecting the proper economy at an audience, but he was assured that Mr. REED had never come to an agreement on the subject with anybody. It is unfair to the Chinese, in reporting this discussion, to take up the idea that they were insincere or dogmatic in all their assertions, and had no scruple in what they said; for in their position erroneous ideas might easily be firmly believed, and it was known to us that Lord AMHERST did agree to kneel before the Emperor as he did before his King; but neither we nor the Chinese alluded to that embassy.

RATIFICATIONS EXCHANGED.

The next day, Tuesday, a courteous response was received, inclosing the Imperial rescript, ordering KWEILIANG and HWASHANA to apply the Great Seal to the Treaty of Tien-tsin, and then to receive the letter from the President for transmission to the Emperor. HANGFUH, the Governor-General of Chihli, was designated to exchange the ratifications of the treaty at Pehtang.

The troublesome points were now arranged, and Wednesday was fixed by KWEILIANG for receiving President BUCHANAN's letter. It was taken by him with much respect, lifting the box above his eyes as he delivered it to an attendant, and gave orders for a guard of honor to be placed over it. An entertainment was served in a style which would have done honor even to SOYER himself, and the Prime Minister appeared as he had usually done, a mild and courteous gentleman. He informed Mr. WARD during the interview that his functions as Imperial Commissioner, and those of his colleague HWASHANA, would now cease, and they would soon return their seal of that office to his Majesty. It is impossible not to feel a high degree of respect for a man like KWEILIANG, although he may have the vices and failings of a pagan, not only from his high political position as the first statesman in the kingdom, but from his venerable age and the unaffected urbanity and kindness of his demeanor.

THE CHINESE AND ANGLO-FRENCH WAR.

The Overland China Mail publishes a letter describing Mr. WARD's journey, in which the writer says:

Twice the American Minister dined with the Imperial Commissioners, and once they with him and his suite. The entertainments by the Commissioners were on both occasions most sumptuous, and when the Commissioners were complimented for their liberality, courtesy and good taste, they replied that a more magnificent and delicate dinner could not be got up for the highest State dignitaries, or even for the Emperor himself. On one of these occasions KWEILIANG adverted to the late unhappy occurrences at the mouth of the Pei-ho, when he remarked with an emotion which was truly touching, and with all the marks of sincerity, that if his age did not entitle him to common marks of respect from Mr. BRUCE, certainly his position did, the Emperor alone being the only individual above him in the empire. He asserted that the Government was altogether sincere in its professed intentions to observe all the stipulations of the treaty with England, and both expected and wished the English Minister to visit Peking, for whose reception and safe conduct imperial orders had been sent to the Governor-General of the Province, as in the case of the American Minister; that he respected, and the Emperor and Government respected, the English nation, whose intelligence and energy he commended, and with whom commerce was mutually advantageous. The Chinese Government desired to live on amicable relations with the English, and hoped the present troubles might be adjusted happily, without any more bloodshed. They had not dreamt of any act of violence or initiation of war till they heard the roar of cannon in the attack on the forts at the mouth of the Pei-ho. That when he and his associate had remained six months at Shanghai at the earnest request of Lord ELGIN, and had done so with much sacrifice and difficulty from the demand for their services at the capital, Mr. BRUCE refused the common and cheap civility of seeing them, and even doubled the insult by sending them the most discourteous, rude, and insulting letters. He did not blame the English or the French for the unprovoked attack upon the forts, he blamed only Mr. BRUCE, who ordered, and was alone responsible for the consequences.

For my part, I am fully persuaded the Chinese intended to fulfill the late treaties. All the arrangements were found to have been made for Mr. WARD's visit to Peking under the imperial order. When the ratifications of the American treaty were exchanged at Pei-tsang, Mr. WARD remarked, at the close of the ceremony, that he hoped the treaty would be a bond of perpetual peace between the two nations, upon which the Governor-General, a man of active intellect and marked ability, replied with great emphasis that the observance of the conditions by each party would be still better. To the same effect were the incidental remarks of the Commissioners in free and honest conversation.

It does not belong to me to comment upon the Pei-ho affair, though I cannot but express my admiration of the bravery of the Englishmen who fell in it, and equally of those who survived. Errors may have been committed on both sides, and blame justly attach to both. But need more blood be shed? Must thousands of ignorant men and women perish for the indiscretions of two or three individuals? And that too, when a satisfactory adjustment could so easily be made? Heaven forbid! Humanity forbid!

I can only add that all the difficulty experienced by Mr. WARD in fulfilling his mission to the capital arose from his persistent refusal to perform the Ko-tow, or head-knocking, so degrading in the eyes of the Western nations, and to none more so than to Americans. The Commissioners proposed a compromise, consenting to his falling upon one knee, and omitting altogether the head-knocking. The Emperor expressed his desire to see the American Minister, and every effort was made to induce him to conform to the modified form of the rite. But all in vain; and hence the failure of an audience from the Emperor. Still Mr. WARD's refusal, when he was within the walls of the Imperial City, attended by a suite composed of twenty individuals, without the least military force or protection, may induce the Court to make the ceremonies upon presentation to the Emperor more in accordance with Western usages and ideas, and thus a real service may be rendered, both to the Chinese and to future ambassadors.

EFFECT OF MR. WARD'S VISIT.

OPINIONS OF THE PRESS.

From the Overland Friend of China.

It was stated in our last summary that, as the Emperor had consented to receive the American Minister at Pekin, it was believed the present mail would carry to Washington the ratified American treaty. But it will not. The Emperor, when Mr. WARD got to Pekin, refused to attach the vermillion pencil unless his Excellency would perform the kotow—that is, go on his knees and knock his head nine times on the ground; and as Mr. WARD was not prepared to do this, he had to go back to the entrance of the river Pehtang, where the Governor of the Province (not the Commissioners who made the treaty) handed him a sealed paper purporting to be a ratification; and with it Mr. WARD, and the United States Government, unwilling to encounter, in Mr. REED's phraseology "wound or scar," must perforce be content in four words—"this treaty is useless."

Always open to conviction, the cogent reasons urged why Mr. BRUCE and M. BOURBOULLON should have been less pugnacious when they found the Pei-ho barred to them, led us to hope different things for the Americans; led us to hope, in fact, that, although Admiral HOPE was checked at Tahu, he did not retire before, in the expenditure of all his ammunition, he gave the Emperor's forces a lesson which they would desire no repetition of—and therefore, that, having had his victory, his Imperial Majesty could afford, and deem it the best policy to be magnanimous and ratify the American Treaty without requiring the homage paid by Westerns to the Deity only.

But we have been disappointed, and can but opine, as we did when the news of the rebuff first reached us, that Mr. BRUCE and M. BOURBOULLON were more than justified in their determination to have the highway to Peking open to them, or not attempt to go there at all. Far better is it for his Imperial Majesty HIEN-FUNG to have an opportunity of throwing all the blame of the battle at Taku on one of his Princes, than that he should be directly involved in personal insult to the representatives of France and England. The misfortune of Admiral HOPE's defeat is only an incident which we have the power to remedy; and it is to be hoped that, without delay, such a demonstration will be made at the Pei-ho that HIEN-FUNG must come to reason, and throw off the absurd pretensions to which he lays claim.

Hong Kong (Sept. 12) Correspondence of the London Times.

The American Minister arrived at Shanghai on the 2d of August, after visiting Peking, where, however, the Mission appear to have been all but prisoners. Personal communication with the Russians was denied them, and some of their correspondence was detained for many days by the Chinese. The Emperor refused to see Mr. WARD unless the latter consented to perform an act of obeisance, and, as he declined to do so, it was notified that the treaty would not be ratified at Peking but at Pei-tang, a village on the Gulf of Pechecele, at the entrance of that stream by which the Americans performed their journey to the capital. The Mission accordingly left Peking, and on its arrival at Pei-tang the ratifications were exchanged without any ceremony. The whole affair appears to have been humiliating and in non-accordance with the dignity of a great nation, and the result proves how correct was the policy of the British and French Ministers in refusing to see the Imperial Commissioners at Shanghai, and declining to pursue the course suggested by the Chinese, which was evidently intended to lead to the humiliation of the foreigner in the eyes of the native population.

THE SLAVERY QUESTION.

Message of the Governor of Mississippi—Negro Revolt in Kentucky—Arrest of a Fugitive Slave in Ohio, &c.

MESSAGE OF THE GOVERNOR OF MISSISSIPPI.

The Message of the Governor of Mississippi was laid before the Legislature of that State on the 7th inst. Federal relations are the first topic referred to. These, the Governor says, are about to become of a most dangerous and alarming character. After some remarks, justifying his motives in the recommendations he is about to make, and asserting his devotion to the Union, so long as it is maintained in its purity, he says:

"Will not the election of an Abolitionist to the Presidency, on a purely sectional issue, make it full time to ask ourselves the question, What will be our situation with such a result accomplished? There is, or can be but one answer, and that is, that we are a conquered people. Yes, as much a conquered people as if we had been subjugated by the sword. It is true that the form and mockery of voting, and sending members to Congress, will still be allowed to us, but of what real value will this be? What good will we derive from the fact of having members there, who, on all questions affecting our interests, must forever vote in a minority? This would be to us no protection whatever, and would be a position of degradation to which no man who was worthy to represent you could or would stoop. On such conditions you could only be represented by some heartless, soulless wretch, who would at all times be ready to sell or betray your interests for the enjoyment of some petty office which no Abolitionist wanted. You would then be in the exact condition in which the British Government proposed to place your fathers before the Revolution. That Government then offered to the Colonies representation in the British Parliament in proportion to numbers. The men of the Revolution, with WASHINGTON at their head, indignantly rejected the proposition. And why? Because such representation would have been but nominal—not real. Such a representation would have been a helpless, hopeless minority, who could have been of no real service to their constituents. If you are willing now to accept or submit to such a position, all the blood of the Revolution was shed in vain. It was for you that your fathers submitted to all the toil and danger and death of a seven years' war. They conquered for you liberty and independence. It is your duty to transmit it unimpaired to your posterity."

Gov. MCWILLIE argues at length the question of protection to Slavery in the Territories, taking the position that the right of property in slaves is just as much entitled to protection as any other property right whatever, and continues:

"I am apprehensive that there are some, though I hope not many, even in the South, who, in the event of the election of an Abolition President, will be opposed to making a direct issue with the North. The only apology or explanation I can give for such conduct is, that 'they know not what they do.' Their course leads either to unconditional submission, or the entire abolition of Slavery, with the utter ruin of the South—or a dissolution of the Union."

The Governor makes the following recommendations:

"I would recommend as necessary and expedient that you, by your legislation, should make it the duty of the then Governor, in the event of the election of a Black Republican to the Presidency of the United States in November, 1860, to issue his proclamation ordering an election for Delegates to a State Convention, to be holden on the first Monday of December next thereafter, and that said Delegates be appointed to assemble at the Capitol, in the city of Jackson, on the third Monday of the said month of December, 1860, for the purpose of adopting such measures as may meet the exigency of the occasion.

I would further recommend that you should adopt resolutions, inviting the other Southern States to cooperate with the State of Mississippi, in the adoption of such measures as may be necessary for the maintenance of their and our rights, as co-equal members of the confederacy. This is all that, for the present, I would recommend to be done. But, as the time has come at which the public mind should be strongly directed to the difficulties and dangers of our position, and the remedies for the same, I would suggest that in my opinion, in such an event as the meeting of a Convention or Congress of the Southern States, we ought to insist upon new constitutional guarantees for our protection. This should be a sine qua non. It is absolutely necessary to our security. The North will then, under the form of our present Constitution, have the entire power and control of the Government—we will be utterly powerless.

With this view, in the event of a Black Republican or Abolitionist being elected to the Presidency, I would suggest that a Convention of the Southern States should throw open all the Southern ports, making them free to the commerce of the world. Thus putting the burden of the new Northern confederacy upon the Northern people. This would be just, as the Government would be of the North, and for the North; consequently, they ought to support their own Government. In addition to this, it might be politic, as a measure of warning, to impose a duty of 25 per cent. on all articles of Northern manufacture, (about the present rate of duty on foreign manufactures.) This would teach the Northern people what the Union is worth to them in money, even if they cannot be made otherwise to appreciate its importance. The moneyed value of the Union to the non-slaveholding States is incalculable. For instance, with the Union, no portion of the earth is more prosperous than Massachusetts—without the Union, none could be less so than she would be. The grass would grow in the streets of Boston, her manufactories would stop, her commerce would perish, and her ships would rot at her wharves, and vice-spread ruin would cover the State. I presume that it will be said of such a measure that it is a dissolution of the Union. This is not necessarily so, unless the North shall choose to make it so by a refusal of our just demands; so far from being an act of dissolution, it will be conservative of the Union; and only preliminary to a possible dissolution, in the event that the North should be deaf to all the appeals of justice, and indifferent to the ties of consanguinity and patriotism. It would be intended to arouse the northern mind to the consequences of their conduct, and to warn them that the fatal gulf of disunion was before them. It would be resistance to tyranny for the preservation of liberty, the great object of the Union. The North has already taught us that every violation of or resistance to the law is not disunion, or if it be so, then the Union is dissolved already. The North resists and violates the Fugitive Slave law; she resists and violates the territorial rights of the South, as settled by the highest tribunal of the country. If, upon the adoption of these or similar measures, the North should still refuse to us the power of self-protection, it would be conclusive evidence that the overthrow of our institutions and the destruction of our property was her object. If she should deny this much to us in the Union, it would be full time that by all the means in our power we should provide for our own security. But my belief and hope are, that if, even then, we should make a decided issue, that the North will yield to our demands, and give to us that which is of inestimable value to us, but of no earthly importance to her, unless for our oppression. The North, too, well understands the value of the Union to herself, to lightly sacrifice it, and it will then be for her to decide the question of Union or Disunion. If she desires the Union, the terms will be easy—we ask but equality. No, not equality, but simply the power of self-protection against hostile and unconditional legislation. The Union will then be in the power and keeping of the North; if she wills it, nothing is easier than to retain it; but, if she will choose to dissolve it, by a refusal of our just demands, and by making war upon us and our institutions, the blame and the ruin will be at her own door.

I deeply deplore the necessity which will exist, in the event of an Abolitionist being elected to the Presidency, for the assembling of a Convention of the Southern States, and for the adoption of such measures as those I have suggested; but the South has no choice between the making use of some such issue, or a dissolution of the Union. I have thought it better to give the Union another chance for life. Secession or disunion is death, while a refusal to pay taxes (or resistance to the revenue laws) is but a violent disease, from which the body politic may recover. Depletion of the Treasury may do good. It, at least, is worth trying, before any final act of disruption to the Union. It will give time for new compacts or guarantees, which ought to be made. What possible objection can the North have to giving us such security, unless she intends our assailment under the forms of the Constitution, by action of the Federal Government? The result would be equivalent to a declaration of such intent, and ought to be met accordingly."

After an elaboration of the argument on this point, Gov. MCWILLIE recommends the arming of the militia of the State, especially the volunteer companies.

THE NEGRO REVOLT IN KENTUCKY.

The Paris (Ky.) Flag puts a different face upon the reported negro conspiracy in Kentucky. It says;

Mr. J. B. CRANDELL, one of our butchers, was pretty badly used up in a fight with some negroes, on Tuesday night last. His account of it, as it comes to us through others, is about this: He was going home, soon after dark, and when a short distance beyond the first toll-gate, on the Middletown road, met three negro men and two women. As he was about to pass, one of the men seized his horse's bridle, remarking that they "might as well settle it now as at any time." The horse reared and CRANDELL sprang off. The negroes at once "pitched in," but as CRANDELL is a very stout man they found they had quite as much as they had bargained for. They fought all round, sometimes up and sometimes down, first CRANDELL under and then the negroes, and sometimes all in a pile. CRANDELL says he thought they were fighting nearly a week. Finally, one of the negroes proposed to quit, saying he was satisfied, and this proposition was carried unanimously.

Mr. CRANDELL went home, and, having got his gun, returned to the scene of action, but saw nothing of his assailants. When he reached his home, however, upon his return, he saw a negro man skulking about, and collaring him, charged him with having been one of his assailants. The negro denied it, and the argument finally waxed so warm that another fight became inevitable. The darky proved a pretty troublesome customer, and required all hands on the place to subdue and tie him, which was finally done and he lodged in jail. He belongs to Col. KINZEA STONE. Another negro, belonging to Mr. HIRAM ROSEBERRY, was arrested next day as one of the parties.

ANOTHER FUGITIVE SLAVE CASE IN OHIO.

From the Cincinnati Times, Nov. 10.

LAST Fourth of July, a negro named "HENRY," slave of Mr. JOHN SEATON, of Greenupsburgh, Ky., made his escape, crossing the Ohio River at Ironton, since which, until a few days past, his whereabout has been unknown. A week or two ago, a warrant was issued for his arrest, and placed in the hands of the United States Deputy Marshal MANSON for execution. The Marshal, learning that the negro was living in Cleveland, repaired to that city, and Thursday evening found the fugitive, who was quietly arrested, placed on board the cars, without any excitement or attempts to rescue him, and brought to this city yesterday morning, where he was examined before United States Commissioner BROWN, and remanded to his owner. Two or three witnesses were examined as to the identity of the negro, but as nothing was elicited from them that the negro himself did not acknowledge, additional testimony at hand was not taken. The fugitive was immediately taken across the river and confined in the Covington jail. No excitement was incident in the case whatsoever.

The act of Mr. MANSON, in going into a portion of the State remarkable for its violent Anti-Slavery character, and, unattended, making an arrest of this description, was a bold one, to say the least.

In this connection, we add, what does not generally seem to be known, that all warrants place in a United States Marshal's hands for execution, authorize him to take the body of the specified person, "if to be found within the State of Ohio," and not "within your district," as many suppose.

THE NUMBER OF SLAVES IN GEORGIA.

The report of the Comptroller of Georgia shows an increase of 11,140 slaves in that State during the past year. The total number of slaves in 1858 was 431,125, and in 1859, 443,364. The average value of slaves in 1858 was $526 39, and in 1859, $612 63—an increase in average value of $86 24. The aggregate value of slaves in 1858 was $227,468,927, and in 1859, $271,620,105. Thus it will be seen that, while the increase in number of slaves is 11,240, the increased value is $54,151,478. This large increase is accounted for by presuming that the usual drafts have been made upon the negro population of Virginia and other border slaveholding States. The natural increase could not have reached these figures.

THE PERSONAL LIBERTY BILL MEETING.

To the Editor of the New-York Times:

In your issue of yesterday (Nov. 15), there is a reportorial article with the general heading—"Prayer meetings for the Insurgents—Strong Praying for the Harper's Ferry Invaders," &c., and a sub-heading running—"A Prayer-meeting at Clinton Hall." This is followed by the statement that

"Another meeting of the friends of the slave, and of sympathizers with the unfortunate John Brown, was held, last evening, in No. 2 Clinton Hall," at which "addresses were made, in which John Brown's sentiments received the warmest approval, by Mr. O. P. JOHNSON, Mr. POWELL, Dr. SNODGRASS and Mr. MOLINO, on behalf of the German Central Republican Committee."

Now, it is due to the history of the times to say that no such "another meeting" (a prayer-meeting, meaning) was held at the time and place mentioned. That your readers may know what sort of a meeting was called together, I beg leave to copy the circular to which I responded—the only form of invitation issued, I believe. Here it is:

"There will be a meeting of a few friends of the Slave, at No. 2 Clinton Hall, on Monday evening next, the 14th inst., at 7½ o'clock, to take into consideration the question as to what can be done towards circulating a petition in this City, in behalf of the enacting of a 'Personal Liberty Bill' by our Legislature the coming Winter. Your counsel and services are much needed. Be so good as to bring with you such friends of the cause as you may know. Plans and propositions will be presented. It will be necessary to appoint a large and efficient Committee. A. M. POWELL, President of the State Committee, and OLIVER JOHNSON, editor of the Anti-Slavery Standard, will be present to address the meeting."

In speaking for myself only, I beg leave to say, that, in the speech which I was invited to make on the occasion, I made no allusion whatever to the sentiments of JOHN BROWN. In allusion to his acts, I asked the audience to recall the fact that the real "slave insurrection" of 1831, in Virginia, was followed by a movement of the Legislature of the very next year, in behalf of emancipation, and that one of the grounds on which the project was favored, was the horribleness, as well as the expensiveness, of slave insurrections; and that I should not, therefore, be surprised if the Harper's Ferry affair were followed by a like movement within my native State, prompted by motives similar to those which held control in 1832! When I do discuss the "sentiments" of JOHN BROWN in public, (whether in "warmest approval" or otherwise.) I shall not have the least objection to having my remarks reported, if indeed worth reporting. But I do object to reporters making speeches for me, and even furnishing the topics for me.

So much to set myself right before the public on a point in which there has been much willful misrepresentation of the political party with which I act, and its leading men. And now a word as to the seeming animus of the report in reference. By misquoting the initials of Mr. JOHNSON from the above circular, which your reporter appears to have had before him, and leaving out the Christian name of Mr. POWELL, and presenting Mr. MOLINO, in the light of a delegated representative from "a Republican Committee," while reporting all of the speakers as bestowing the "warmest approval" of JOHN BROWN's "sentiments," &c., I would have been forced to the conclusion that he was most unworthily using his privilege to hide the fact that Mr. OLIVER JOHNSON, who is the editor of the National Anti-Slavery Standard, (an organ of the non-voting Garrisonian Abolitionists,) and Mr. AARON M. POWELL, who is an agent for the same organization, were Republicans, instead of most persistent, and I must do them the justice to say, also consistent, opponents of the Republican Party, its doctrines and its plans!

The truth is just this: The meeting on Monday evening was neither called by Republicans nor conducted by them. The Republicans who were present and gave its sole object their countenance (which was neither to pray nor speak for Capt. BROWN, but to promote the passage of a "Personal Liberty bill") acted on their own individual responsibility, and not otherwise. Any attempt, therefore, to make any party answerable for their speeches or acts would be unworthy of the TIMES, and I am glad to be able to persuade myself that that secret of the wrong done by its reporter is to be found in the fact that, coming into the meeting at a late stage of its proceedings, he relied on some informant bent more on misrepresentations, for sinister purposes, than the truth.

The wickedly-persistent efforts being made to show complicity with JOHN BROWN, for political effect—efforts which will probably react upon those engaged in them, in all cases, as already in the State election, and so punish these reckless prostitutes to Pro-Slavery partisanship—will sufficiently plead my excuse for troubling you with this communication.

Respectfully yours, J. E. SNODGRASS.

THE KIDNAPPING CASE IN MASSACHUSETTS.

[BY TELEGRAPH.]

BARNSTABLE, Mass., Tuesday, Nov. 15.

The kidnapping indictments involving the return of COLUMBUS JONES to Slavery were taken up this forenoon in the Superior Court. The defendants filed a special plea, alleging that JONES was a fugitive slave, and that they arrested him as the agents of the owner, and denying the validity of the statutes under which the indictments are framed. To this the District-Attorney filed a demurrer, and for the purpose of the trial the demurrer was sustained without argument. The defendants then plead the general issue, and filed a motion for continuance, on the ground that they had just learned of the existence of a decree in chancery, in Florida, establishing the ownership of JONES. The competency of that evidence was denied, and the question was argued at length by the District-Attorney and Gen. CUSHING. The Court took the papers, and will give a decision in the morning.

Trade With Havana.

NEW COMMERCIAL REGULATIONS.

The State Department issues the following:

DEPARTMENT OF STATE, WASHINGTON, Nov. 10, 1859.

Information has been received at this Department from THOMAS SAVAGE, Esq., the United States Vice-Consul-General at Havana, of the publication, on the 24th ult., of a decree of the Governor-General of Cuba, of which the following is a translation:

1. The royal order of 1st July, relative to the rules to be observed by the Captains and supercargoes of vessels which may be engaged in foreign commerce with ports in Cuba, shall commence to be enforced at all the Custom-houses of this Island from and after the 1st of December of the present year.

2. No change is to be made in terms and manner in which mail steamers are at present dispatched, and, therefore, the Custom-house of this port shall not require of them a compliance with the rules established in the said sovereign resolution.

1. The smacks or vessels that come with live fish from the neighboring coasts, and leave the ports of this island constantly, are exempt from the obligation of producing the consular certificates required by the said royal order; and, fourthly, captains of vessels arriving from foreign ports where there are no Consuls to issue such documents, shall not be obliged to produce them.

Your lordships will cause the foregoing regulation to be published, so that the commercial community may be informed thereof; and in order that the same may become known to Her Majesty's Consuls in the ports of the United States, I on this day communicate it to his Excellency the Minister at Washington, and by the first mail will likewise submit it to the definitive resolution of Her Majesty's Government, which I transcribe to your lordship for your information and the consequent effects, directing you to have it published and circulated to the other administrators of the island.

INTERNATIONAL AMENITIES.

Links between England and America.

From the London Spectator.

So far from any severence between the two countries, there is at the present moment a constant increase of new relations of a positive kind and of the most friendly character.

Events but little known to the public are almost daily occurring which exercise a powerful influence in strengthening the bonds of individual friendship between the two countries. We speak from direct personal knowledge of transactions in Washington, when we say that within the present year not less than eleven British naval officers and merchant captains have received testimonials in some form or other from the President of the United States, sent in acknowledgment of services rendered to distressed Americans at sea.

A handsome gold chronometer, appropriately inscribed, together with a gold chain, was presented by the President, in February last, to Capt. CHARLES ROBERTSON, of the British ship Sir John Moore, for rescuing 16 seamen and 35 passengers from the wreck of the American ship May Queen, on the 1st of September, 1858.

A similar chronometer and chain was presented in June last, to Capt. HODGSON, of the British brig Antigua Packet, for rescuing the crew and passengers of the American ship St. Petersburg, from their sinking ship, in October, 1858. In the same month, a gold medal, with a neat inscription, was presented to Capt. C. MATTHEWS, of the British ship Admiral, for rescuing the crew and passengers of the ship A. Z., of New-York, at sea, on the 5th of October, 1858.

In July of the present year a gold chronometer and chain were sent to Capt. STRAKER, of the British bark Constellation, for rescuing from the wreck of the American three-masted schooner Gulf Stream, in December, 1858, the captain and crew of that vessel.

During the month of September a gold chronometer and chain were presented respectively from the same high functionary to Capt. ROBERT WAITE, of the British ship Retriever, for rescuing the crew of the American ship Sarah Minot, destroyed by fire at sea on the 29th June of this year; and to Capt. PETER CONRAD PETRIE, of the screw-steamer City of Washington, for the same service to the captain and crew of American ship Gray Oak, by taking them from their boats after their ship had foundered in the month of March last.

The President has also lately presented a truly valuable sword of honor to Lieut. J. JENKINS, of Her Majesty's gun-boat Banterer, for rescuing certain American citizens and their property from Chinese pirates in the River Min, in December, 1858.

A gold chronometer and chain have been presented to Capt. WILLIAM WILLIAMS, of the British bark Imogene, for rescuing the crew of the American ship Fleetwood, lost in the South Atlantic in May last.

In February last the President's thanks were transmitted to the officers of her Majesty's vessels Kite and Juseur at Bermuda, for their alacrity in searching for the American bark Parthian, in November, 1858, at which time she was reported to be in distress off that island.

At the same time the acting with the knowledge of Stillman and Belden, a decree was procured in favor of Cavazos; and thereafter a conveyance of the property was procured, to be made by Cavazos to Basse & Hord, who hold it, as charged, under a secret trust for the benefit of Stillman, Belden and Alling.

Judge Watrous was during this time Judge of the United States District Court of the District of Texas, and the complaint charges him with being cognizant of the fraud intended to be perpetrated upon the plaintiffs by means of the pretended suit and collusive decree; and that he colluded with the other defendants in allowing the suit to be prosecuted to a decree in favor of Cavazos. In particular it is charged that, by agreement with the other defendants, he gave notice he would hold no court in January, 1852, but afterwards did hold court at that time, and rendered a decree against Stillman, Belden & Mussina in the Cavazos suit; also, that he improperly assumed to adjudicate on the rights of parties who were not legally before him; also, that he fraudulently permitted Hord to testify in the Cavazos suit; also, that he maliciously instituted proceedings against Jacob Mussina for a pretended contempt of court. Other details of alleged improper conduct of Judge Watrous are given. The complaint seeks $500,000 damages and accounting for the value of the lands.

In the answer of Judge Watrous, he fully denies all the charges of fraud, collusion, conspiracy or improper conduct preferred by the complaint, or that he ever had any knowledge of any such frauds as are charged by plaintiffs or his co-defendants, or even aided or abetted in them, &c., &c. He denies also that any of his acts or proceedings as Judge were illegal or inequitable, or that he ever assumed to adjudicate on the rights of parties not before him, or that he knew Hord to be interested in the event of the Cavazos suit, or that he took proceedings against Mussina for contempt, with any such intent as is alleged in the complaint. He also denies any and all interest in the subject matter of the litigation.

The case now came up on an order to show cause, obtained by plaintiff, why the testimony of Charles Stillman should not be taken conditionally—it being shown by affidavit that he was about to leave the State to go to Texas. The motion was opposed on an affidavit of defendant's attorney, Paris G. Clark, Esq., that the defendant Watrous resided in Texas, and was now there; and that he (Mr. Clark) could not safely proceed to take the testimony of the witness without time given him to communicate with his client.

The motion was heard before Justice DAVIES, at Chambers of the Supreme Court. He considered that the defendant ought not to be compelled to go on with the examination, and denied the motion.

John W. Edmonds for the motion; Paris G. Clark opposed.

GENERAL SESSIONS.

Highway Robbers Disposed of—Heavy Sentences.

The Court of General Sessions yesterday, was, by no means, an idle tribunal of Justice. It disposed of several serious cases, foremost of which was that of Edward Armstrong, a Scotchman, a descendant, probably, of the Armstrongs of the Border, who used to sweep down upon the Southrons and disappear with their cattle—men who followed Rob Roy's maxim, that "those may take who have the power, and those may keep who can." This Edward Armstrong, was tried yesterday for highway robbery. On Oct. 19, he met a sailor, named Thomas Graham, at No. 330 Water-street—a drinking-hole and dance-house. The sailor manifested the possession of funds in rather an incautious manner, whereupon Armstrong enticed him into the street, and aided by others, forced him down and robbed him of six dollars. Counsel for Armstrong, Ex-Judge Stuart, tried to make it out a simple case of petit larceny, but Judge RUSSELL held altogether a different opinion, and so charged the jury. Jury found Armstrong guilty. Judge sent him to the State Prison for Ten Years and Six Months. Armstrong is 24 years old.

John Shea, aged 18, and Michael Duffy, also aged 18, indicted for highway robbery, pleaded guilty to an assault with intent to commit robbery. On the night of Oct. 7, they attacked a German named John Wagomus, in Worth-street, and while one held him, the other cut his vest pocket out with a knife, and robbed him of two dollars and five cents; cutting also his fingers in the operation. The Court reserved sentence till Saturday.

John Turner, charged with forging an order for two bottles of liniment, (what did he want with them?) pleaded guilty of forgery in the fourth degree, and was sent to the State Prison for two years.

Matthew A. Williams, indicted for assault and battery with intent to kill, pleaded guilty of simple assault. On July 21st he stabbed Daniel Dority with a knife. The dispute had reference to the ownership of a stand in Washington Market. Sentence reserved.

Martin Murphy, aged 18, pleaded guilty to an attempt at grand larceny. On Nov. 6, he attempted to steal a watch, and other property valued at $200. Solomon Mason's front door was unfastened in the afternoon, and he walked in. He proceeded up stairs, and was helping himself to the above articles, when Mrs. Mary Mason, wife of Solomon, caught him in the act. He rushed past her, but was arrested in the street. Sentence reserved.

Frances M. Chatterton was tried on a charge of stealing $53 from Philip Wolfe, and acquitted.

Henry Kruse pleaded guilty to forgery in the fourth degree, in passing counterfeit $3 and $5 bills on the Citizens' Bank of New-York. Sentence reserved.

James Smith, aged 23; Patrick Carrigan, aged 27; and John Welsh, aged 25, were convicted of grand larceny. They stole a block of tin, weighing 70 lbs., worth $28, from a pier on the East River. The tin belonged to Walter S. Clark. The judge sentenced them to four years and six months in the State Prison.

And after doing all this business, the Court adjourned.

The Murphy Police Case Disposed Of.

The People ex rel. Patrick Murphy vs. The Police Commissioners.—This case was now disposed of by the Court, the respondent's counsel having moved for a nonsuit, on the ground that the relator had not shown that, at the passage of the Metropolitan Act, he was a policeman de jure.

Justice MULLEN directed the jury to find for the respondent on the first issue—that the plaintiff was not a policeman de jure at the time of the passage of that act; and for the relator on the second issue—that he was a policeman de facto at that time. The other issues were then withdrawn by counsel for the parties, and thus the first police case ended in the Circuit.

A. R. Dyett for relator; Vanderpoel, Noyes and Field for respondents.

The Gate-house Case Decided.

The People, &c., vs. The Mayor, &c., of New-York.—In this case it will be remembered that an application was made in the name of the Attorney-General, as representing the people of the State, for an injunction to restrain the defendants from passing a resolution directing the Croton Aqueduct Department to give the contract for building the gate-houses for the new Reservoir to Fairchild, Walker & Co., or to any other person, except on bids made in pursuance of law. The ground upon which the application was based, was that Fairchild, Walker & Co. were the highest bidders, and that the Common Council were proceeding to give them the contract in violation of law.

Justice INGRAHAM has rendered his decision, holding that the papers on which the application was based are insufficient to make out a case. The motion is denied for that reason.

Prospective Lawyers.

The Examining Committee upon applications for admission to the bar had another session yesterday, and the examination of the class proceeded. There are thirty-two applicants for admission, making the number much larger than on any former occasion for some time. Mr. Larocque examines on the practice, and Messrs. Gerrard and Bonney will take up elementary law. The next session is Thursday afternoon.

Action for Damages for Falling into a Pit.

Henry Appel vs. James Hume.—This was an action tried before Justice BOSWORTH, of the Superior Court, to recover damages of the defendant for an injury alleged to have been received by the plaintiff from the carelessness of the defendant. The complaint alleged that the defendant was sole contractor for the erection of a building on Chambers-street, near West Broadway, in 1857, and that he left an excavation adjoining in such an uncovered condition that the plaintiff in passing fell into it on Oct. 19 of that year and was disabled and confined in the City Hospital under medical treatment for six months thereafter. The answer averred that plaintiff was leaning upon the railing to guard people against the excavation, and so threw his heft upon it as to break it, and that it was by such carelessness and negligence on his part that he was precipitated into the pit. It also set up that the defendant was not the sole contractor, and was not therefore solely liable for any damage that might have been suffered by any one in consequence of the excavation. The case was called at a late hour, and is still on.

J. B. Phillips for plaintiff; H. A. Cram and C. A. Hand, for defendant.

NEW PUBLICATIONS.

THE HERO OF DELHI.

TWELVE YEARS
OF
SOLDIER'S LIFE IN INDIA.
Being Extracts from the Letters of the late
Maj. W. S. R. HODSON, B. A.,
First Bengal European Fusileers, Commandant of Hodson's Horse, including
A Personal Narrative of the Siege of Delhi and Capture of the King and Princess.
Edited by his brother, Rev. GEORGE H. HODSON, M. A.
With an Introduction by the author of "School Days at Rugby."

The author of "School Days at Rugby" says of the subject of this memoir:

"There is little chance that the subject of this paper will be forgotten by his countrymen, for not only has he carved out with his sword a name for himself which knows few equals even in Indian story, but he has left materials which have enabled his brother to put together one of the best biographies in our language. * * * While England can honor brave deeds and be grateful to brave men, the heroes of the Indian mutiny will never be forgotten, and the hearts of our children's children will leap up at the names of Lawrence, Havelock, and Hodson. THOMAS HUGHES."

From the London Athenæum.

If from the chosen ones of each Regiment of England's brave men in the Indian war, a bravest of the brave were to be selected, we believe that Hodson, of Hodson's Horse, would stand forth the representative of the band of heroes. * * * Neither Fernando Perez del Pulgar, or any Cid, or Paladin, ever achieved nobler exploits than are here recorded.

From Blackwood's Magazine.

Ask any soldier who was the bravest man before Delhi, who most in the saddle, and foremost, and nine out of ten in the Infantry will tell you—HODSON.

From the London Examiner.

As long as manly courage—a courage which is shown not only in the field of battle, but in the often harder contest of peaceful times—is held in honor, Englishmen will have reason to smile proudly when they speak of Hodson, of Hodson's Horse. * * * Many more editions are to come, for thousands are still to read in it the story of a Christian soldier, with whom duty, in its full sense, was the one fixed principle.

From the Saturday Review.

With regard to the selection of the letters, and the simple narrative which has been contributed to them as a setting, we can hardly overpraise the taste, the judgment, and the manly sense with which the editor has fulfilled his pious task.

From the Literary Gazette.

It is a fitting memorial that his brother has raised over him. Taste and judgment we had a right to expect from a Fellow of Trinity. That to these have been added precisely that manliness and good sense which Major Hodson would most have desired that his biographer should possess.

ANDREW JACKSON.
BY JAMES PARTON.
Author of "Life and Times of Aaron Burr," &c.
Vol. I.
636 pp., 8vo. With Steel Portrait. Price, in cloth extra, $2 50; Library styles, $3; half calf or Morocco, $4; full calf or Morocco, $5; full calf or Morocco antique, gilt edges, $6.

The publishers have the pleasure of announcing that this long-expected work, upon which Mr. Parton has been indefatigably engaged for some years, and on which he has bestowed an amount of careful research and laborious investigation rarely given to a biography, is now so far progressed that the first volume will be published on Saturday, Nov. 19. The work will form three octavo volumes, of about 650 pages each. The other volumes will follow at intervals of three and four months. Each will have one or more steel portraits, and the paper, printing and binding will be of the best quality.

Gen. Jackson is, without doubt, one of the most interesting subjects for biography in American History. His life was crowded with events, and the whole of his career was peculiar, extraordinary, interesting, beyond that of any of his cotemporaries. In his own life-time he was the most popular of American citizens, and since his death there is but one name more endeared than his to the masses of the people.

The publishers deem it unnecessary to do more than allude to Mr. Parton's qualifications for so important a work. His rare powers of research, investigation and analysis; his faculty for grouping incidents and persons with picturesque effect; his transparent honesty of purpose; the precision, clearness and vigor of his style, unite to place him in the front rank of biographers who have written in the English language.

NEWS OF THE DAY.

From late Chinese journals, received by the Hungarian, we derive most interesting particulars of Mr. Ward's visit to Peking, and of the ratification of the American Treaty. That ratification, as already known, was performed at Pei-tang, a village on the Gulf of Pecheelee. It seems, from the accounts furnished, that the Emperor was very cordially disposed toward the American Minister, but refused to see him unless he consented to perform an act of obeisance utterly incompatible with his own dignity or that of the Government and people he was commissioned to represent. An interview was thus made impossible, and the treaties were exchanged at a distance from the Capital, without any peculiar formalities. London journals, and notably the Times, affect to believe that, in their treatment of Mr. Ward, the Chinese meant to humiliate him, and inferences are drawn therefrom, in favor of the wiser policy of force resorted to by England and France. But this view is not warranted by the facts of the case; nor does it appear that the British Minister could not even now, after the successful example of his American confrère, effect a peaceable and satisfactory adjustment of all outstanding difficulties with the Celestial Government.

Nothing official, if we may trust our special dispatch from Washington, has been received from Minister Ward since his departure from Peking. Mr. Preston is on his way home from Madrid. He returns to attend to the execution of the will of the late Robert Wickliffe, of Kentucky. No successor to Minister Mason will be named until the chances for Mr. Slidell's reëlection to the Senate are ascertained. The first official information of the Brownsville affair reached Government yesterday. The Cabinet are considering the propriety of taking temporary possession of the northern States of Mexico, and it is understood that it will be recommended by the President in his Message.

Intelligence to Nov. 5 has been received from the City of Mexico. Marquez was daily expected there; and, as his popularity with the reactionary party was momentarily in the ascendant, it was supposed he would be declared Dictator. The seizure of the Tepic conducta he avows, but ascribes it to patriotic motives.

Further details of news by the Overland Mail to Oct. 24, are telegraphed from St. Louis. Gov. Weller, it was understood, was to make his appointment of a United States Senator, in the place of the late Mr. Broderick, in time for the steamer of Nov. 5. A destructive fire had laid waste a large portion of the town of Yreka. From the Sandwich Islands we hear of the dullness of trade, the failure of the coffee, and the moderate success of the sugar crop. The passengers and crew of the clipper-ship Mastiff, whose disaster has already been reported, were carried to Honolulu by the British ship Achilles. Among the passengers was Mr. Richard H. Dana, of Boston. There were also on board 175 Chinamen, one of whom was the only person lost. Nothing but the lives of the party was saved. The cargo and the personal effects of the captain, crew and passengers were utterly destroyed with the vessel.

Our Utah Correspondent furnishes late and interesting accounts from Salt Lake City. In regard to the Camp Floyd mule sale, he denies that the transaction was at all the dictate of expediency or of necessity. The mules were not in a dying condition, but in the highest health; and the cost of forage was less than during the previous year. Seven assassinations had occurred in the streets of the City since last July; the assassin in every case but one being a Mormon. In the exceptional case, the offender, being a Gentile, has been sentenced to death.

No intelligence having been received of the missing steamer North Star, we give elsewhere the official list of her passengers, as published at the time of her departure, and also the names of her officers and crew, as they are enrolled on the crew list at the Custom House. By these it appears that there were over seven hundred persons on board, of whom a large number were ladies and children. The sailors, marines, and United States officers, on their way to join the United States frigate Saranac, on the Pacific station, numbered one hundred and sixty-four. The cargo of the steamer consisted of some 346 packages of Express freight, valued at $52,235. The owners profess to entertain no fears for the safety of the steamer, supposing she may have put into some port of the West Indies, where she will be heard from in a few days. There is, nevertheless, great public anxiety on her account.

The State Election returns in our table this morning, including all the official majorities received by telegraph to the hour of going to press, place Mr. Floyd Jones 563 votes ahead of Mr. Leavenworth for Secretary of State. The probability is that he is elected.

The Mozart Hall Convention met last evening and nominated Fernando Wood for Mayor, unanimously, and for Alms-House Governor, James Lynch. No disturbance of any kind occurred to mar the proceedings.

In the suit against Judge Watrous, of Texas, another application was made yesterday before Justice Davies, of the Supreme Court, to take the testimony of Stillman, but was denied. Justice Ingraham, of the Supreme Court, has denied the application for an injunction to restrain the award of the gate-house contract, on the ground of insufficiency in the papers submitted. In the old Police case, on trial at the Circuit, Justice Mullen directed the jury to find, on the evidence before them, that the plaintiff was a policeman de facto, but not de jure; and thus the case was disposed of for the present.

The Board of Supervisors referred a communication from the Police Commissioners, asking for an appropriation of $10,000 to carry out a contract made with Mr. C. Robinson, by the terms of which the latter is to furnish thirty new police telegraph instruments to be used in the various Station-houses. It then filled a number of vacancies in the Board of Registration, occasioned by the redistricting of certain Wards, and directed that several bills against the County, of small amount, be paid. The body sat as a Board of County Canvassers till 6 P. M. A resolution in favor of authorizing the County Clerk to distribute the poll-lists to the Registrars in the several election districts forthwith, was lost after considerable debate. The returns from the First, Second, Third, Fourth, Sixth, Seventh and Thirteenth Wards were canvassed, and the Board adjourned to 10 A. M. today. At the meeting of the Board of Governors, the report of the Committee on Supplies and Finance was adopted. It recommended the appropriation for the current year of $639,150 for the support of the Institutions under its charge, being nearly $26,000 less than the sum required last year. The work of erecting a new wing to the Insane Asylum is to proceed at once. Seven thousand five hundred and twenty-six inmates remained in the institutions on the 12th inst.

A singular phenomenon was witnessed yesterday morning, in this City, between the hours of 9 and 10, by thousands of persons. An immense meteor, taking a southeast course, traversed the City and appeared to drop into the North River. The sun was shining brightly at the time, but the meteor was nevertheless distinctly visible, dazzling the eye with a luminous whiteness as of distant snow on which the solar rays are reflected. Such phenomena on a smaller scale are not uncommon at this period of the year, but the meteor observed yesterday was of an unusually rare size, and if beheld in the darkness of night would probably have been one of the most splendid on record.

The Stock Market yesterday was again dull for speculation in most of the Share list. Panama was the prominent exception, the price rising to 128 ½ per cent. The State Stocks were rather dull. The prominent Railway Bonds in fair demand. Money easy on demand loan and for choice mercantile paper, double name, while fair single signatures are in less favor. The Exchanges for the Boston steamer closed 110 at 60 days, and 110¼ at sight on London.

Cotton was purchased to the extent of 1,800 bales, including 1,000 bales in transitu. Prices were sustained. The movements in Breadstuffs were restricted. Flour and Wheat favored buyers, decidedly. Rye and Barley were quoted firmer. Provisions, Sugars, Coffee, Rice, Hay, Calcutta Linseed and Whisky were in fair demand. Fish, Hides, Leather, Metals, Naval Stores, Oils and Tobacco were quiet. The freight engagements were moderate.

Our Chinese Mission.

We publish, to-day, the first full and explicit account which has yet been received in this country of the reception of our Minister to China at Peking, and of the final exchange of ratifications between himself and the Imperial Chinese Commissioners, at Pei-tang, on the 16th of July last. It will, we think, be difficult for any impartial person to read this story, as it stands in our columns, without a sentiment of indignation at the deliberate misrepresentations of Mr. Ward's experience at the Chinese capital, which our amiable kinsmen of the English Press have been at such pains to fabricate for the purpose of convincing the world that the American Envoy had eaten a great deal of superfluous dirt in Peking; and possibly, too, in the hope of vexing our sensitive and susceptible national pride into an outburst of practical sympathy with the domineering and intolerant policy countenanced by the present English Minister in China, and by a large portion of the British public. For nothing can be more plain than that the Chinese Government did everything which could reasonably have been expected from it to facilitate Mr. Ward's journey to the capital, and to conciliate, if possible, the ancient etiquette of China with the exigencies of Western self-respect, and the proprieties of diplomatic intercourse between civilized nations. That Mr. Ward was carried to Peking in a vehicle singularly like a box, and probably not very well adapted to promote his personal comfort in a three days' journey over country roads as rough as those of England a century ago, or the North Carolina corduroys of to-day, does certainly appear. But it is equally certain that the Chinese regard vehicles of this sort as eminently becoming for the transport of distinguished persons; Sir George Stanton mentioning it as an incident of Lord Macartney's mission that a splendid English barouche, presented to the Emperor, was received with polite indications of disgust, because its construction not only exposed the occupant to public view, but also elevated the driver above his head. And Mr. Ward must accordingly have reconciled himself to his jolting carriage as the Irishman put up with his trip in a bottomless sedan-chair, by reflecting "on the honor of the thing." But we are really quite at a loss to see what there was either in the box or out of it, in Mr. Ward's journey, in his sojourn at the capital, or in his subsequent return to Pei-tang for the exchange of ratifications, to justify the notion of the Chinese correspondent of the London Times that the "whole affair was humiliating and in non-accordance with the dignity of a great nation."

Mr. Ward went to China to perfect a treaty which had been pronounced satisfactory in the main by the people and the Government of the United States. He went there with no instructions to force his way into the presence of the Chinese Emperor, or insist upon breaking down any of the institutions, forms or ceremonies of Chinese society, the United States perceiving no particular reason for vindicating their own national importance by humiliating the pride and wounding the prejudices of another and a less civilized people. All that we expected of the Chinese for our Minister was such respectful treatment in degree as we should ourselves desire to extend to a Chinese Envoy in America, were such a functionary ever to visit this remote, and, to the Chinese Imperial apprehension, thoroughly insignificant country. A difference in the kind of this respectful treatment we naturally looked for from a people so radically unlike our own as the people of China. We took, in short, very much the same view of the international proprieties of intercourse with China which seems to have prevailed among the better class of Englishmen, when George III., of blessed memory, commissioned the Earl of Macartney to bear his respects to his august brother Chien-Lung, the Great Emperor. The narrative of Lord Macartney's embassy, as described by his accomplished Secretary, Sir George Stanton, presents, indeed, a very striking contrast with the theory and practice of modern Anglo-Chinese diplomacy as illustrated in the career of Hon. Frederic Bruce, from the time of his contemptuous interviews with the Chinese Vizier at Shanghai to the ignominious moment of the defeat of the English forces at the mouth of the Pei-ho. The traditions of Lord Macartney's grave, courteous, dignified and successful policy, have departed from the councils of Britain to find a congenial home in those of the American Republic. Like Lord Macartney, Mr. Ward accepted the professions of good-will made to him by the Chinese authorities with frank and high-bred equanimity. He saw no reason in the superior civilization and honesty of his own country for insulting the most venerable officials of another State. Invited to visit Peking by a particular road, and with an escort provided for him by the Imperial Government, Mr. Ward, like Lord Macartney, saw nothing degrading in following the line of travel pointed out to him by his hosts; and with his little company of twenty gentlemen he found himself not less considerately treated, nor attended with fewer marks of honor towards himself and his country, than the English Earl had been with his privates of the Guard in their powdered perukes and scarlet coats, his six pieces of brass artillery, and his magnificent train of camp equipages. Arrived at the capital, Mr. Ward, like Lord Macartney, was urged by the highest officers of the Court to accept an audience of the Emperor on conditions which to the Chinese mind must have appeared the extreme of liberal consideration for the crotchets of a foreign race in matters of etiquette. And we think it must be admitted that, in the discussion of the points thus raised, the Chinese of to-day have the advantage of Mr. Ward as their fathers had of his British predecessor. The Chinese began by conceding the substantial issue of equality. They admitted that Mr. Buchanan was a Klum-Chu, which they meant for a compliment, however oddly it may sound to Western ears, and that Mr. Ward was to be treated as the vicar of a Klum-Chu ought to be. They were, therefore, prepared to dispense entirely with the ceremony of prostration, and merely asked Mr. Ward to kneel once to the Emperor, promising that if ever a Mandarin Envoy should visit Washington he would do as much for Mr. Buchanan, and even "burn incense before him if required." Nothing could have been more fair than this proposition, and the subtle distinction which Mr. Ward, like Lord Macartney, attempts to establish between "kneeling" once as a sign of respect, and "bowing nine times" for the same purpose, strikes us as rather metaphysical than practical. However, it was maintained, and as Mr. Ward, unlike Lord Macartney, apparently does not travel with a portrait of his chief, he could not finally compromise like the Earl by Ko-towing to the Emperor, while a high Mandarin Ko-towed to the portrait of King George. Nevertheless he obtained, like Lord Macartney, all the honorable objects of his mission, parted on the best of terms with his Chinese hosts, and has left behind him, we venture to say, an influence more favorable to future American relations with China than can ever be won by all the domineering demands of envoys like Mr. Bruce, and all the cannon balls of commanders like Admiral Hope.

The California Steam Lines.

The fate of the North Star steamer, of Vanderbilt's California line, is still in painful suspense. The concern and excitement in the public mind from the possibility, not to say probability, that she encountered some very serious accident on her outward voyage, is of course deepened by the great number of human lives with which she was freighted. The bare suggestion of a total loss is too horrible to contemplate. Hence the rumored steady confidence of her hitherto fortunate and prosperous owner that the ship has only been disabled, and made for and taken shelter off some of the West India Islands, was yesterday shared, to a very considerable extent, by the public generally, including the underwriters and ship-owners down town. At the same time, the return of the Daniel Webster, without the slightest tidings of her missing consort, has redoubled the anxiety previously felt on the subject.

Of the number of lives on board when the North Star left this port, Oct. 20, including the crew and ordinary passengers for California, and the United States officers and marines on their way to join the Saranac, steam frigate, we hope, without feeling certain, that our record is complete. The total of this is seven hundred and two,—while the round estimate, before this publication of names and numbers, was generally placed from two to three hundred higher. The very cheap competing terms at which the line accepted all applicants for second cabin and steerage passages to the latest moment before the sailing of the ship, there is reason to apprehend may have increased the number fifty or a hundred persons beyond the first formal reports to the Press and the Custom-house. These reports give:

Of First Cabin passengers	212
Of Second Cabin passengers	100
Of Steerage passengers	150
Of United States Officers and Engineers	22
Of United States Marines and Sailors	142
Total, exclusive of crew	626
Officers and crew of the ship	76
Grand total	702

Of the names we have no present record, except of the twenty-two United States officers and two hundred and twelve first-class passengers. The total number as given above is unquestionably in excess of the number authorized to be carried by a vessel of the tonnage of this ship by the United States Emigrant Passenger law. Why this humane and salutary act was violated in this instance, and why it is so often and so recklessly disregarded in the California trade, (as it could not be defied with impunity in the emigrant trade from Europe,) it might be useful, as it certainly would be curious, to inquire. In the present instance it might perhaps be replied by the owner of the line that the excess of one hundred and sixty-four United States officers, marines, and sailors, is one for which he is not amenable to the law or the public; for the North Star being a Federal Mail steamer, she was bound to carry the Federal forces to the point to which they were ordered as best she could, and that, but for these, the other two hundred and ninety-eight passengers would have been within the legal limit, and might have been rendered at least moderately comfortable—for the amount of money they paid! We are content to leave the public to their own inferences on this particular point, while we cannot suffer the occasion to pass without directing attention to the general abuse of the common law of humanity, and the act of Congress which has obtained more or less, with all the steam lines in the California passenger trade, for the last ten years. Our own convictions on the subject of the grasping avarice and reckless inhumanity which dictate the overcrowding of these ships, were made up in the early stage of the California trade, seven or eight years ago. Certain jury trials for civil damages against Law and Vanderbilt, before the Emigrant Passenger Act was placed upon the statute book, satisfied us that the whole business, as then and still carried on, in its chief aim to suddenly enrich great steamship proprietors, was only one remove from the cruelties of the African Slave transports. And it is due to truth—and, perhaps, to the men then engaged in it, since it is proved that they were, to say the least, no worse than their successors—to add that the present competition, at low prices, between the rival lines to Aspinwall and San Francisco, has in no sense mitigated the evil. If their proprietors are not at this moment, as we fear they have been for some months, calculating the chances of maintaining a competition which would otherwise prove immediately ruinous, by making up in overcrowded numbers the loss by low fares, without regard to the comfortable capacity of their ships, their authorized or admitted reports of the passengers carried since the 1st of October mean less than the nature of the operation would seem to imply.

Our Prompt President.

If it were not irreverent to suppose that Mr. Buchanan can have anything to learn, and idle to imagine that he could learn it if he had, we should endeavor to point out to the Presidential mind that the words prompt and peremptory are hardly synonymous. In dealing with Cortinas and the Brownsville foray our illustrious Chief Magistrate is likely, we fear, to confound them. His confidential organ has, at least, given him the praise of promptitude for his action in this matter for no better reason, as yet appears, than because, after waiting for six weeks to find out what he ought to do, he has at last done in the most sudden and furious way the very worst thing possible in the premises. Cortinas, as we have already explained, is simply an infuriated borderer, making a raid partly of revenge, partly of booty, upon the people of the Texan frontier. Had the President taken half as much pains to protect this part of the Republic as he did to rescue Gov. Wise and his Virginians from annihilation by John Brown's band, Cortinas might have been suppressed as easily as the conqueror of Harper's Ferry. But there were no available troops in the neighborhood, and Cortinas had it all his own way so long that he became emboldened to grander enterprises than he had at first apparently meditated, and is now a serious terror to the whole country of the Rio Grande. Something decisive must, of course, be done, and what does the President do? Instead of stamping out at once this local fire, he sends his troops off to Brownsville with orders to spread it as widely as possible, and to convert it into a national conflagration. Mexico, whose soldiers have been the only defence of our citizens, and who has loyally done her duty, and more than her duty, in aiding our distressed fellow-citizens, is to be deliberately insulted by an order given our troops to pursue Cortinas and his brigands, "if necessary, to the Gulf of California." Mexican territory is to be violated; our influence in Mexico gravely compromised, and our national honor tarnished by a piece of bravado which is only not utterly inane, if it has been prompted by a positive desire to bring on an unnecessary and wicked war with this distracted Republic at our doors.

Beyond this brilliant effort of statesmanship Mr. Buchanan can hardly go; and the utmost that his fondest admirers can hope for him, is that he may succeed in balancing his "prompt" foray against Mexico by a "prompt" retreat from San Juan. To enforce an outrageous wrong upon a helpless Republic at the very moment of surrendering a positive right to a powerful monarchy, will be a tour of Presidential legerdemain altogether worthy of Mr. Buchanan's ambition, and admirably becoming to him in these declining days of his Administrative authority.

Nominating Conventions.

The City Democracy seems to be possessed by seven devils, who tear and rend that respectable body without the slightest intermission. All portions of its frame are equally afflicted. Whether it meets in Tammany or Mozart Hall, the result is the same. The rejoicings of Tammany, a few nights ago, were rudely interrupted by a pugilistic encounter between the inspired minstrel of that time-honored establishment and an equally inspired or inspirited and very disrespectful fireman. On Monday night the followers of Fernando Wood met to hold high converse in Mozart Hall, and were also invaded by their demoniac familiar. An ex-Judge and an ex-prize-fighter were competitors for the chair, and the ex-prize-fighter having, by superior activity and agility obtained possession of the wooden seat, claimed as a legitimate consequence thereof the ideal honor of which that article is the symbol. He enforced his pretensions by an offer to defend his position in a stand-up fight with his rival. Two meetings were thereupon convened in opposite corners of "the hall," and the destinies of the City of New-York remained for some minutes trembling in the balance. The decision was happily postponed by an adjournment of one of these camps, as their chairman, on reflection, found himself not "in condition" to oust his rival. If the various factions will take our advice, they will in future put the persons they intend to have preside at their meetings into training before hand, under the care of some trustworthy pugilist, and bring them to the room ready for action. Or, perhaps, Mr. Hekman and Mr. Morrissey might be induced to go into business as regular caucus Presidents at a handsome salary per night. They would, at least, be likely to keep order in the assemblage. The thing should be settled at once, for our election is near at hand, and we wait to learn from meetings such as these what man of all our citizens is the most "fit and desertless" person to be our future Mayor. The system of "Nominating Conventions," as at present carried out in this City, is a most impressive and beautiful feature of our Republican institutions.

THE ACADEMY OF MUSIC.

The production of a new Opera is a matter of such labor, and is attended with so much expense and uncertainty, that a manager may well be excused for doing as little in that line of business as possible. Fortunately the public craves novelty, or we might reasonably conclude that never another new work would be given. Yet they who crave are anything but liberal in the indulgence of their appetite. It is notorious that both here and in Europe all new operas are for the first few months comparative failures. The people who cry out the loudest for novelty are the first to express their disgust with that which is new, and the manager who has spent his all in a praiseworthy effort to keep pace with the demand of the times finds himself deserted by the very men on whom he had most confidently relied. Verdi, who is the most popular of composers, is also the most unfortunate in this respect; "Rigoletto," "La Traviata," and "Il Trovatore," were all comparative failures on their first production, although now the most popular operas in every repertoire. The "Sicilian Vespers" must, we fear, be added to this list. Brought out in the most superb style in everything that respect mise en scene and costumes, it yet hangs fire. The critics are unanimous in saying that it contains some of Verdi's best pieces, although, as a whole, the work is unequal. Critics have said this of every work that ever was written. The public applaud the principal morceaux with evident satisfaction, and two or three of the airs have already been added to the repertoire of our best whistlers. Notwithstanding these auspicious circumstances, the opera still hangs fire. In a year from now it will be twice as popular.

Messrs. Ullman and Strakosch have resolved to withdraw the work, and to-night it will be played for the last time but one. It is a pity that this determination is justified, because the artists have now fairly conquered their parts, and sing with ease to themselves and comfort to the audience. The orchestra and chorus, too, are superb. In fact, we have performances that are worthy of any operatic establishment. It is not encouraging for art when the public shows this palpable indifference to novelty. There will, we hope, be a good attendance to-night.

PAGE'S VENUS.

This remarkable picture, which has excited so much comment, will be exhibited to-day for the last time. Its career in this City has been brilliant beyond expectation. Six thousand dollars, we are informed, have been derived from its exhibition.

A girl, 2½ years old, was lately stolen from her parents in Will County, Ill. Two men, supposed to be the kidnappers, have been traced to Chicago, but have not yet been arrested. The affair created much excitement in the vicinity of its occurrence.

CITY INTELLIGENCE.

Dinner of a Medical Benevolent Association.—The New-York Society for the Relief of Widows and Orphans of Medical Men commemorated its Seventeenth Anniversary, last evening, by a dinner at the Metropolitan Hotel. About 180 persons, mostly members of the Association, sat down to the tables. Among the prominent physicians of the City present were Drs. Francis, Stevens, Reese, Detmold, James R. Wood, Horace Green. Dr. Isaac Wood, the President of the Society, occupied the chair, with Dr. Weston, a clergyman, on his right, and Wm. M. Evarts on his left. After the removal of the cloth, Dr. Alexander H. Stephens, Rev. Dr. Weston, W. M. Evarts, Esq., and Drs. May and James R. Wood, made brief addresses. A printed statement of the Secretary represents the affairs of the Society as in a prosperous condition. The funds on hand amount to nearly $30,000, most of which are invested in bond and mortgage, netting 7 per cent. per annum. The receipts of the past year, including interest on the invested fund, have been $2,688 33, while the disbursements only amount to $333 25, thus indicating a remarkable paucity of widows and orphans among the medical profession, who stand in need of charitable aid. Only one death—that of Henry L. Churchill, M.D.—has occurred among the members of the Association since the last Anniversary.

A Seasonable Recovery.—Mr. M. Riesky's fur-store in Third-street, near Cherry, Philadelphia, was entered by means of false keys, about four weeks since, and muffs, tippets, capes and cuffs, valued in the aggregate at $3,000, were stolen by the burglars. Information of the robbery was given to the New-York Police, as it was believed that a market for the goods would be sought in this City. Detectives Elder, McCord, King and Slowey have been vigilant in quest of the property, and, after searching many suspected places, have at last succeeded in recovering $2,800 worth of it. The furs had all been carefully divested of their trimmings to prevent identification, but the private marks of the dealer had escaped the thieves' attention, and the oversight afforded ample proof as to whence the goods came. A portion of the property was found concealed in the cellar and attic of house No. 182 East Broadway, occupied by a Mr. Cohn, a fur and cap dealer, having stores at No. 403 Canal-street and at No. 89 Liberty, from both of which places other portions of the goods were recovered. Mr. Cohn and his wife are in custody awaiting an examination on a charge of purchasing the property when they knew it to have been stolen.

Preliminary Ascension by Mr. Lowe.—A beautiful ascension was made by Mr. Lowe from Crystal Palace-square yesterday afternoon at 3 o'clock. He went up apparently in a perpendicular line for nearly a mile, and when last visible seemed to be on the way to Boston. The City of New-York will begin inflating for the transatlantic trip to-morrow.

The Russ Pavement.—Contractors, omnibus-drivers, and the proprietors of stage lines are rejoicing over the hole made in the solid Russ of Broadway. Upon the block between Reade and Duane streets the work of breaking up the granite into smaller and rougher blocks has been commenced.

For Europe.—The steamer Bavaria left yesterday for Southampton, Havre, and Hamburg, carrying 125 passengers.

CITY GOVERNMENT.

BOARD OF SUPERVISORS.

POLICE TELEGRAPH INSTRUMENTS—BILLS AUDITED AND ALLOWED—REGISTRARS APPOINTED—THE COUNTY CANVASS—THE BOARD REFUSES TO DISTRIBUTE THE POLL LISTS—THE RETURNS FROM SEVEN WARDS CANVASSED.

The Board of Supervisors was called to order by President Purdy at a little after 11 o'clock A. M., yesterday.

Supervisor Kennedy said that, as the Board was required by law to sit as a Board of County Canvassers at 12 o'clock, he moved that the regular order of business be suspended in order that before that hour it might fill the vacancies in the Board of Registration.

The motion was lost,—the Democratic members voting against it.

Supervisor Kennedy could not understand why the Democrats opposed the motion. There had been more alteration of the Districts in some of the Wards, so that some of the Registrars previously appointed could no longer serve. He hoped some of the gentlemen would explain why they had voted as they did.

No explanation, however, was made.

An estimate of the amount required during the year 1860 to meet the current annual expenses of public instruction in the County, was received from the Board of Education and referred.

A communication was received from the President of the Board of Police Commissioners, setting forth that a new arrangement had been entered into with Mr. C. Robinson, the proprietor of the Fire Telegraph, and asking the Board to make an appropriation to meet the terms of the agreement made with him. Mr. Robinson proposes to put up thirty new Police telegraph instruments in the various Station-houses of the City, and to give the Police Commissioners the right to use the Morse patent, together with all improvements and extension of the patent, in consideration of which he asks the sum of $10,000—one-half to remain until the new instruments shall have been in operation six months. The communication was referred to the Committee on Criminal Courts and Police.

Supervisor Kennedy renewed his motion for the filling of vacancies in the Board of Registration.

Supervisor Purdy was willing to vote for the motion, if the gentleman would agree that for those Districts where now there was a Democratic majority, as indicated by the result of the late election, there should be two Democrats and one Republican appointed Registrars, and where the Republicans were in the majority, two Republicans and one Democrat should be chosen.

Supervisor Kennedy said it would be more proper to give the Republicans a majority in the Boards of Registration in those Districts in which the Democrats were in the majority, and vice versa.

Supervisor Kennedy's motion was again lost—Ayes, 4; Nays, 7.

The Committee on Annual Taxes reported in favor of reducing the assessment on the New-York Life Insurance Company for 1855 and 1856, in accordance with the decision of the Supreme Court, from a valuation of $1,000,000 to that of $100,000, and that the Comptroller be directed to pay the costs incurred by the Company in the suit brought against the County to secure this reduction, amounting to $150. The report was adopted.

It was directed that the bills of Peter Moneghan, for repairing books of the Registrar's office, amounting to $438 15; of S. C. Herring, for a safe for the County Bureau, amounting to $205; and of G. Hubbard & Co., for three clocks for the Superior Court, amounting to $75, be paid.

The Board, at this juncture, took a recess for fifteen minutes, and the Supervisors were qualified as County Canvassers.

A quarter of an hour afterwards the Board was again called to order.

Supervisor Kennedy once more moved that the Board proceed to fill vacancies in the Board of Registration.

The motion was carried this time without opposition. It had been agreed that in the districts of even numerical designation there should be two Democratic and one Republican Registrar, and in those of odd numerical designation two Republican and one Democratic Registrar. The following Registrars were chosen unanimously:

Ward.	Dist.	Registrars.
VII	2	David P. Arnold, (Dem.)
		Michael Mulquin, (Dem.)
		Wm. H. Classman, (Rep.)
	3	Archibald Hall, Jr., (Rep.)
		Lewis Holtz, (Rep.)
		John Millmore, (Dem.)
	4	Richard O'Grady, (Dem.)
		James L. Johnson, (Dem.)
		Charles March, (Rep.)
	7	J. Bancroft Stephens, (Rep.)
		E. E. Skidmore, (Rep.)
		Wm. H. Burns, (Dem.)
	8	Jacob F. Valentine, (Dem.)
		Jeremiah Fitz; (Dem.)
		Thomas Kershaw, (Rep.)
	10	Henry Close, (Dem.)
		Thomas Waters, (Dem.)
		John Nicholson, (Rep.)
	11	John W. Gallagher, (Rep.)
		James Upson, (Rep.)
		Alfred Donaldson, (Dem.)
XIII	8	Lawrence E. Hill, (Dem.)
		John Carroll, (Dem.)
		Robert Patterson, (Rep.)

The Board now took a recess for half an hour, and organized as a Board of COUNTY CANVASSERS.

It was 1 o'clock when Supervisor Purdy called the Board of County Canvassers to order.

Mr. Clancy, the County Clerk, was in his place, as Clerk of the Board.

Supervisor Bell offered the following:

Resolved, That the County Clerk be, and he is hereby authorized and directed to distribute the poll-lists to the Registrars in the several election districts forthwith, as required by the provisions of "An Act for ascertaining by proper proofs the citizens who shall be entitled to the right of suffrage and to prevent fraudulent voting."

Supervisor Kennedy was opposed to opening the sealed election returns to take therefrom the poll-lists. It would create suspicion upon the County canvass, and it was contrary to the letter and spirit of the law.

Supervisor Blunt took the same ground.

Supervisor Stewart asked whether the returns could not be opened by the County Canvassers, in order to take out the poll-lists, and then sealed again.

Supervisor Purdy (in the Chair)—Certainly.

Supervisor Kennedy said he had always opposed the provision in the Registry law which requires the copying of the poll-lists.

Supervisor Jeff Little thought the Board could do that which the resolution required.

Supervisor Blunt opposed it, and vindicated the Registry law.

Supervisor Bell amended his resolution, so as to direct the "Secretary of the Board of County Canvassers" to distribute the poll-lists, instead of the County Clerk. Supervisor Bell said he had not offered his resolution without consulting with members on both sides of the house. Political or past considerations had nothing to do with it.

Supervisor Kennedy stated that he had said, when he was consulted, that such a resolution ought not to be adopted, and could not be properly.

Supervisor Blunt replied that Supervisor Bell'

For every day's delay [illegible] the County Clerk says, the County will lose about $8,000.

The Board of County Canvassers have took a recess, and then, as the Board of Supervisors, adjourned over to Tuesday, at 3 o'clock; after which the members sat again as a Board of County Canvassers, and the canvass proceeded. The returns from the First, Second, Third, Fourth, Sixth, Seventh and Thirteenth Wards, were canvassed, and at 6 o'clock the Board, after resolving to meet daily at 10 A. M., till the canvass is finished, adjourned.

The poll-list for each Ward, as each return is canvassed, will be sent to the Registrars. Several were delivered to them yesterday.

BOARD OF TEN GOVERNORS.

A NEW WING FOR THE INSANE ASYLUM—ARRANGEMENTS FOR THANKSGIVING—ANNUAL APPROPRIATION—WEEKLY STATEMENT.

At the weekly meeting of the Board of Governors, yesterday, Governor Dugro presiding, a communication was received from the Warden on Randall's Island, recommending the purchase of the Winter supply of vegetables, flour, &c. It was referred to the proper Committee.

The Hibernia Company, of Philadelphia, asked permission to present the children on Randall's Island with a national banner. The petition was acceded to, and the Committee were charged with the duty of receiving the Philadelphia delegation.

Dr. Hawthorne, house-surgeon of Bellevue Hospital, sent a communication to the Board, explaining the controversy between himself and Coroner Schirmer. It was decided that in all Coroner's cases every facility must be afforded them for pursuing their investigations at the hospitals.

The Committees on Supplies and Finance reported that the amount required for the support of the Institutions for the year 1860 was $639,150, being a decrease of $25,850 from the amount appropriated for the preceding year. The number of inmates at present being 7,558, there was an increase of 76 over the corresponding period last year. The report was adopted.

Upon the question for adopting the report of the Committee upon the Lunatic Asylum, Governor B. F. Pinckney urged upon the Board the importance of entering at once upon the work of erecting the proposed new wing to the Lunatic Asylum. There were accommodations in the present structure for only 450, while 712 were crowded into it, to the great discomfort of the inmates, to say nothing of the objections to such a course from the unhealthiness which it might create. He wished to see the work contracted for and prosecuted at once.

Governor Townsend wished, as a matter of economy, to make use of their own labor in getting out the stone during the coming winter.

Governor Smith agreed with Governor Pinckney, as to the impropriety of crowding the Insane Asylum with so large a number, and was in favor of proceeding immediately with the work, making use of the $30,000, which were appropriated last year, to make a beginning. The report was adopted, the money to be used as suggested.

One hundred dollars were appropriated to be expended in providing a Thanksgiving Festival for the children on Randall's Island, and fifty dollars to furnish one to the inmates of the Insane Asylum. The following is the abstract of the weekly statement:

Number remaining Nov. 5		7,558
Admitted		1,439
Total		8,997
Died	32
Discharged	1,366
Sent to Penitentiary	74	1,472

A STARTLING METEORIC DISPLAY.

A Large Meteoric Ball Descends upon New-York — Popular Excitement — Omens, Auguries and Portents Dire—Notes upon Meteors.

The Superintendent, Deputy-Superintendent, Property Clerk, Telegraph Operator, Head of the Detectives, and all the police officials and sub-officials at head-quarters, corner of Broome and Elm streets, were yesterday morning, shortly after 10 of the clock by magnetic time, startled by the following dispatch telegraphed from the Twenty-third Precinct Station-house by Sergeant Clinton:

"We witnessed just now one of the most singular things ever seen in this City. A large body of fire, in the shape of a comet, with a body as large as a house, and a tail about 40 feet long, fell from the heavens between this village (Yorkville) and Seventy-first-street, lighting up the whole neighborhood, and witnessed by crowds of people."

Startled! That is not the word. Electrified will not half express the agitation. Flabbergasted only faintly approaches it, and, moreover, is vulgar. Capt. De Camp telegraphed back to Sergeant Clinton, requesting further information, asking for the names of responsible persons who had witnessed the astonishing phenomenop. Sergeant Clinton again put the wires in operation. He had seen it; many members of the police force of the Twenty-third Precinct had seen it; numerous worthy citizens had seen it. It made a loud report when it fell. Captain De Camp telegraphed again—Was it a balloon on fire? Serge accepted idea is that in the inter-planetary spaces, matter exists in every variety of form and condition. To account for the phenomena of meteors, we must then suppose that there are detached masses of chaotic matter revolving around the sun, the intersection of which by the earth's orbit would account for the periodic swarms of meteors. The cause of their luminous and ignited condition remains yet unexplained.

But what of the meteor that fell yesterday, startling the police of the Twenty-third Precinct? Superstitious people have ever seen in celestial phenomena, eclipses, comets, shooting-stars, &c., omens dire, and tribulations in futuro. What of Harper's Ferry, and a general rise of the negroes? Is a dissolution of the Union imminent,or are we only threatened with an unusually cold Winter and a rise in the price of coals? Will the Superintendent, Deputy Superintendent, Property Clerk, or Head of the Detectives telegraph to Sergeant CLINTON, and learn from him what we are to expect from that meteor?

THE LECTURE SEASON.

The Instincts and the Passions.

LECTURE BY REV. HENRY WARD BEECHER AT COOPER INSTITUTE.

A lecture was delivered in Cooper Institute last night by Rev. HENRY WARD BEECHER. The Hall was filled to repletion. The subject of the address was the comparative authority, as incentives to human conduct, of the head and the heart. We must, he said, give facts to the intellect, reasoning to the judgment feelings,to the feelings. The truths of the world might be divided in their relations unto men into two classes: The truths for the head and the truths for the heart; and the evidence for each must be presented respectively to the head and to the heart. Yet men differed so much from each other that no one mode of argument could produce a like conviction in all. Thousands of men assented without believing. They simply gave up the things by which men fashioned their lives and shaped their destiny. The most active forces of human life were latent, latent as heat was, as magnetism was, as the formative processes of the assimilating powers of the body were. The body was like SOLOMON'S temple; it grew up without sound of hammer or instrument. Just so with man's soul. Its tendencies were not gross enough for vocalization or even for analysis. In view of this he asserted the dignity of the feelings of the heart. He stood up for the heart against the bigotry of the head. It was the fashion of modern metaphysical civilization to augment the dignity of modern metaphysical philosophy, to crown intellect at the expense of the emotions. It was needful for truth and even for good morals that we should understand, in regard to the largest elements of truth, that God had decreed that the heart should be the legislator and that the head should record its decisions. The feeling of lofty things lay back of the thought. No man could think courage who did not feel it first. No man thought honor. He felt honor, and then he thought. That he felt and then thought was the origin of all moral and social truths. The topic of moral truths was always in the heart. Our best judgment of those truths were those which the mind made when most perfectly suffused with that truth. The head was only a lantern; the heart was the light that was in it. Intuitions, properly regarded, were the best judges men had in the world. Those truths of feeling to which he referred were those of which we spoke every day. They were the truths of human life in its anterior processes. He would not deny the reasonings on the results of feeling; but, as the botanist never created flowers, but followed God, gathered and described them, so the intellect never followed truths and never found them out except as it followed the heart-soil for them, and found how they grew there. The truest teaching was that by which the feelings were expanded. This was the reverse of the doctrine of the schools, which said that men were to be indoctrinated first and to feel afterwards. But it was the heart which must teach the understanding. No man ever thought well while under the inspiration of the animal passions and appetites, while under the control of selfishness or malign feelings. Right living and right thinking were cause and effect, and right feeling was right thinking. The heart was the gold mine, it furnished the metal; the intellect forged it into chain: the heart was the architect, logic was only the stone mason or joiner who put the stone or wood together. They who felt that they might think, and think that they might feel again, were the truest moral philosophers, and if there were any of them whose eyes must be shut, let them shut up those of the head, and obey those of the heart. More reason would make a man stumble ten times, when mere feeling would do so once. If the heart were used more, trusted more, it would be better for man. The errors of some men were more loveable than the truths of others; for who would prefer the sleek, trembling saint, who never had a heart big enough to drive him into a mistake, to those great souls whose hearts drove them into blunders. If there were anything which the North more honored than any other it was success; and, if there were anything to which the South was more partial than any other it was Slavery; yet, so it happened that there never was another man who inspired so much respect in the South, or who in the North was so near becoming a hero as, "JOHN BROWN."

[The mention of BROWN'S name was followed by applause, intermingled with hisses, which, though renewed, were at length lost in the approving cheers with which they were met.]

Mr. BEECHER resumed—He was going to say that this was the spontaneous testimony of men of noble nature but of none other. [Laughter.] Men who lived down in the bottom of their hearts always hissed like serpents out of their holes. Men who had resurrections out of their passions always came to hiss out them. Nature spoke with the tongues of angels, but never with the sibillations of the lower animals. [Laughter.] When, the lecturer continued, conviction was the property of emotion all logic should be directed to the feelings. The mere logician was but half a reasoner. We were apt to blame men for their opinions when they were not to blame; if we knew each other better there would be a great deal more peace in the world. We were generically alike, but specifically distinct. There never came into the world two men alike. Every man could not take in all truth. Each was to take in as much as belonged to his seeing, and the sum of the whole was very nearly the whole truth.

Assuming the doctrine here laid down as to the responsibility of men for their belief, not collectively, but individually, Mr. BEECHER proceeded to construct a very striking argument, in which he contended that toleration was not a grace, but a duty, and that a man's belief was not his privilege, but his prerogative. This was the concluding point of his discourse.

The War in Italy.

MR. RAYMOND'S LECTURE AT PLYMOUTH CHURCH.

Last evening's lecture in the Plymouth course, at Brooklyn, was delivered by Mr. HENRY J. RAYMOND, whose subject was, "The Late War in Italy." Mr. RAYMOND spoke for an hour and a half, to an audience of 2,000 persons. In introducing the subject of his lecture, he remarked that he had prepared, in anticipation of this occasion, a somewhat elaborate essay on the remote and immediate causes of the late war—an essay not quite so voluminous as the history of Mr. ALISON, but probably quite as dull—but had thrown it aside, to be replaced by a conversational narrative of some of the incidents pertaining to the history of the campaign. The late war in Italy had attracted, and still attracts, great attention in the United States, partly because we are the most excitable people on the face of the earth—partly because our sympathies are always freely extended to any nation which is engaged in a struggle for the recovery of its liberty. The war was brief and brilliant; it came and went like last year's comet; and, as in the case of that phenomenon, men had observed its progress, calculated its motion, and anticipated its results.

Briefly tracing the historical incidents immediately antecedent to the commencement of the campaign in Italy, the lecturer assumed the ground that the Emperor NAPOLEON was led to take the part he did in that series of events, not from any poetical sentiment of magnanimity, nor from any peculiar sympathy with a struggling people but solely with a view to the interest of France. He adverted to the compact of the Holy Alliance, as affording evidence of the inferior position to which France had been reduced by the Treaty of 1815. The Alliance had gone about its work of humbling France and partitioning Italy, with as great an appearance of religious zeal as any of our Bible Societies, or even the Tract Society, when those bodies mean to do anything particularly outrageous. [Laughter and applause.] In pursuance of the system which bound the great Powers of Europe to mutual assistance, the nations had upheld Austria in her repeated attempts to put down, step by step, and year by year, every effort of the people of Italy to free themselves from the rule of her oppressor. It was only upon the accession of King VICTOR EMANUEL to the throne of Sardinia that the Italian nationalities began to take a firmer tone and assume a sterner aspect; and the lecturer attributed the rapid progress of the spirit of Italian independence to the wise statesmanship of Count CAVOUR, and the earnest patriotism of the Sardinian King. In the war of the Crimea, the military reputation of Sardinia came to be acknowledged. Her participation in that struggle entitled her to claim a seat at the council board of Europe. The Count CAVOUR appeared at Paris as her representative, and it was then that he first unfolded the doctrine that the cause of Sardinia was the cause of Italy and of Europe. The Emperor NAPOLEON had elevated France to a higher rank among the European Powers by the part she had assumed as the ally of England; and the wise, sagacious, prudent and bold monarch decided to espouse the Italian cause. Mr. RAYMOND briefly alluded to the earlier steps of the campaign in Italy, demonstrated the responsibility which rested upon Austria of having begun the war, and expounded the causes which rendered a participation in the conflict the first interest of France; and then proceeded to narrate some of the incidents which had fallen under his observation during the progress of the war. The idea of devastation and ruin, naturally associated with the thought of a country ravaged by war, was disproved by general observation of the campaign. Nothing of this sort appeared in Italy to one who followed the track of the allied armies. Where the troops had marched the observer could see the signs of their progress, but, except the places where a bridge had been blown up or the grain trampled down, there was no indication of the recent presence of a hostile array. On the field of Magenta, it was true, there were evident tokens of conflict, but still there was no trace of universal wreck and ruin. The lecturer bore testimony to the extreme order of discipline maintained by the French army in its whole progress through Italy; spoke of the scrupulous, business-like regularity with which all the operations of the army were conducted, and narrated instances of the dealings of the troops with the people. Remarking upon the sentiment of the Italian people during the progress of the campaign, he dwelt upon the indifference of the great mass to the contest going on around them. Apparently careless as to the result, the peasant pursued his labor in the field, the shopkeeper sold his wares, and the merchant transacted his ordinary business. Passing to a running comment upon the decisive conflict of Solferino, the lecturer described the features of that battle, alluded in terms of high compliment to the conspicuous generalship of the Emperor NAPOLEON, and held that, although the combat proved decisive in its result upon the event of the war, it was lost to the Austrians through the incompetency of the Emperor FRANCIS JOSEPH; adducing, in this connection, the corroborative testimony of a distinguished American officer. Mr RAYMOND argued that the peace of Villafranca exhibited the prudent policy of NAPOLEON, not less than his desire to adhere to the pledge he had given that the war should be localized and confined to Italy. He demonstrated, from the example set by Prussia in placing her army upon a war-footing, and from the attitude assumed by Russia in insisting upon mediation, that NAPOLEON concluded the peace in order to avoid a general European war, and contended that this act of prudence argued a wiser forecast than the headlong course which would probably have been adopted in similar circumstances by the first NAPOLEON. In conclusion, the lecturer commented in general terms upon the results of the war. In passing judgment at this distance from the scene of conflict, it was unwise to view the question solely from our own stand-point. The constitution of European politics differs so essentially from our own, that no just comparison can be made; nor should the present attitude of the Italian question be regarded as a decisive or unchangeable result.

The next lecture in this course will be delivered on Tuesday evening, Nov. 22, by Gov. BANKS. The subject will be announced hereafter.

Miss Dr. Blackwell on the Laws of Hygiene.

The first of a Course of Lectures to Ladies was delivered, yesterday, by Dr. ELIZABETH BLACKWELL, at Clinton Hall, to a large and attentive audience. The lecturer dwelt on physiological laws in general, the nature of the body, the laws that govern it, the conditions required to maintain it in health, and the mutual influence of body and mind. She insisted on the need of attention to external conditions, and was especially condemnatory of the practice in vogue of over-heating rooms by furnaces, regardless of ventilation. The study of hygiene was the most important branch of the profession, and the practice of paying a doctor to keep one in health the most logical of all. Hitherto people had turned their attention to the study of the cure of diseases, instead of their prevention; it was time to reverse this order of things, and to prevent instead of cure them. This should be made a part of the course of study in schools and colleges; sanitary professorships should be endowed; and no one should be pronounced capable of instructing the mind unless he understood at the same time the laws that govern the body. Despite our alleged degeneracy, our Anglo-American race was the finest type yet seen, including as it did the highest physical possibilities, from the facilities afforded for reaching the mind of the masses. The lecturer dwelt at length on the need of physiological education for woman, in her three-fold capacity of mother, educator and benefactor.

The remaining lectures of the course will be given on the 18th and 22d inst., and will illustrate the progress of the idea of the medical education of women, both in America and England.

Dr. Scudder on India.

Rev. Dr. SCUDDER will lecture this evening, at the Cooper Institute, on "Hindoo Pantheism and Boston Transcendentalism, with a Dessert of Hindoo Proverbs."

Coroner's Inquests.

A CELESTIAL TRANSMIGRATION.

ASIATICO CATALINO, a Chinaman, was found, quite dead, on Monday evening, suspended by his neck with a pocket-handkerchief, which he had fastened to his berth, on the steamer Ocean Bird, where he had been employed. From the testimony of the mate of the vessel, at the inquest held by Coroner JACKMAN, it appeared that CATALINO and a countryman of his were fighting on Saturday night, when the witness endeavored to separate them. At this the deceased attempted to wound him with a knife, and then ran away. A few hours afterwards he was captured, brought back to the vessel, and placed in irons. On Monday evening, when his supper was taken to him, he was found dead. A verdict of suicide was returned.

FATALLY SCALDED.

WILLIAM MANAHAN, a child two years of age, fell into a tub of hot water, last Friday, and was scalded so severely that death ensued on Monday evening. The accident happened at No. 107 Cherry street, where an inquest was held by Coroner JACKMAN.

Fires.

FIRE IN EAST THIRTEENTH-STREET.

The Fifth District alarm, soon after 2 o'clock yesterday morning, was caused by some person setting fire to a frame stable in the rear of No. 284 East Thirteenth-street. The stable was occupied by THOMAS and JOHN FAGAN and JOHN SULLIVAN, and three horses owned by them, valued at $300, were suffocated. The stable, valued at $200, was destroyed. There was no insurance on either horses or stable.

FIRE IN PEARL-STREET.

Yesterday morning, about 9½ o'clock, an accidental fire occurred in the basement of the premises No. 507 Pearl-street, occupied by Mrs. MARY CAVANAGH as a dry goods store. Damage about $50, and not insured.

FIRE IN DUANE-STREET.

A fire broke out yesterday morning about 5 o'clock, in the foundry of GEORGE DURNO, No. 5 Duane-street. The flames were extinguished before they had gained much headway. Damage about $200 and not insured.

Police.

A BRUTAL FELLOW.

John Cregan, residing in the rear of No. 78 Centre-street, was arrested, last evening, by the Sixth Precinct Police, for beating his wife with a bottle. The woman was badly cut on her head, and was removed to the New-York Hospital.

A SENSIBLE POLICE CAPTAIN.

Last evening, a very respectable looking woman, accompanied by two children, applied at the Sixth Precinct Station-house for lodgings. Capt. Dowling questioned the woman, and learned that her husband, Michael Downey, had been drinking, and had turned her out of doors. The Captain made the remark—"Well, I think you and your children have the best right to the house"—and in a few minutes he arrested the brutal husband, locked him up, and reinstated Mrs. Downey and her children in their home.

BROOKLYN INTELLIGENCE.

BOARD OF CANVASSERS.—The King's County Board of Supervisors met yesterday as a Board of Canvassers, in the City Hall, and organized by electing Superintendent STRYKER Chairman. All of the returns of the recent election were in, except that of New Lotts; and as the law requires that all of them must be received before the canvass can be commenced, the Board had no alternative but to adjourn. A communication was received from a Committee of the Common Council, calling for the returns for city officers. It was laid on the table. Mr. S. B. CHAPMAN presented a protest against the returns from the Second District of the Tenth Ward being counted, on the ground that other persons than those legally authorized so to do assisted in canvassing the votes. Laid upon the table. The Board adjourned to meet again at 1 o'clock to-day.

A BOLD THIEF.—MARY A. DUNN entered the house of Mrs. GILTRA, on Twenty-first-street, Gowadus, Monday afternoon, during the temporary absence of the family, and carried away a bundle of clothing. A little girl, not more than ten years old, witnessed the transaction, and followed the woman until she met an officer, when she caused her arrest.

THE TAXES.—The Supervisors held a special meeting, yesterday afternoon, to confirm the tax lists. The legal objection raised by the Brooklyn Benevolent Society, that their property was not subject to assessment, having been disposed of by a decision of Judge LOTT, in the morning, the lists were confirmed, signed and delivered to the Collector of Taxes and Assessments. The point raised by the Benevolent Society, was argued before Judge LOTT, on a motion to quash the mandamus, and the Court decided that the action taken is not the proper course to test that question, and that the Supervisors cannot go behind the Assessors' list of property; they, therefore, have no power to strike out this property from the assessment roll.

CENTRAL RAILROAD COMPANY.—This Company having failed to obtain the consent of the City Railroad Company to issue transfer tickets on the route where the roads of the two companies cross each other, the President of the Central Company announces that they will issue tickets at three cents each, to persons wishing to be transferred. A car will hereafter be started every five minutes from the foot of Atlantic-street, and the price of tickets by the quantity is reduced to $4 per hundred.

TRIAL OF A PICKPOCKET.—HATFIELD, alias "The Chief Mourner," was placed on trial yesterday before Justice CORNWELL for stealing a purse containing money, from a lady, while attending a funeral at St. Anne's Church recently. The Jury, after a patient hearing of the case, were unable to agree, and were discharged.

TRUE ENOUGH.—Politeness is like an air-cushion, very soothing, though there's nothing in it. But there is one thing that is soothing, with something in it, and that is, one of those magnificent Winter style of Hats—the inimitable KNOX-Hat. Fashion and KNOX are at the corner of Broadway and Fulton-street.

ALLCOCK'S POROUS PLASTERS—TESTIMONIAL.—"T. ALLCOCK & CO., No. 294 Canal-st., New-York—Gentlemen: I lately suffered severely from a weakness in my back, occasioned by suddenly over-exerting myself. Having heard your Plasters much recommended for cases of this kind, I procured one, and the result was all that I could desire. A single plaster cured me in a week. Yours respectfully, J. G. BRIGGS,

Proprietor of the Brandreth House, New-York.

There is nothing equal in the way of a Plaster, to the Porous Plaster of Mr. ALLCOCK. Everything is pleasant about them. They are the Plaster of the day, and a fit type of our present advancement in science and art. In Asthma, Cough, Kidney Affections, and local deep-seated pains, they afford permanent relief. Those purchased at No. 294 Canal-st., are warranted. Price 25 cents each.

Catarrh.

By the error and fallacy of medical theorists, and the consequent failure of physicians to cure disease, quackery has been inaugurated. Many diseases now deemed incurable would long since have yielded to the efficacy of medicine, had not the pathology of them been false and delusive. Among such is catarrh! From the dawn of Medical Science to this time, no medical writer has ever understood what it really was, where located, or what its character and results. Hence it was never cured till my pathology and treatment had brought it under the control of medicine. I treat and cure it. I will give to any applicant a pamphlet accurately describing the disease. Great Fire at Marianna, Fla.

MARIANNA, Fla., Nov. 4, 1859.

MESSRS. S. C. HERRING & CO.:

GENTS: On the 28th of October our town was visited by a very destructive fire, and the largest one which has ever taken place here, destroying a whole block of the finest stores in the place. I had a Herring's Patent Safe in use, which was subjected to a most intense heat, and fell into a cellar below. After removing from the ruins and opening it, the contents were found to be wholly uninjured.

I would here remark that they truly merit the title of the Champion Fire-Proof Safes. You will please ship me another immediately, as I do not consider my books, papers and money secure without one.

Respectfully yours, D. B. LESLIE.

FIRE AT RICHMOND, VA.

RICHMOND, Va., Nov. 2, 1859.

Messrs. KNOWLES & WALFORD, Agents: We take pleasure in adding to your long list of certificates our testimonials in favor of HERRING'S PATENT FIRE-PROOF SAFES.

In the fire which consumed our Steam-Sawing and Carpenter shops, on the night of the 29th October last, we had one of HERRING'S SAFES, and though exposed to intense heat, (it was entirely red-hot on the outside) from the burning floors and timbers which fell on it, on opening the next day, we found no appearance to indicate that its contents had been near fire. We shall order another from you in a few days, and use the old one at our sawing-mill, near Mayo's Bridge, where you may refer customers who have any doubts about the FIRE-PROOF qualities of HERRING'S SAFES.

Coughs and Colds! Coughs and Colds!

SEASONABLE ADVICE.

Let no one neglect a cold or a slight cough. Thousands doing so have had one cold added to another, until the mucus membrane lining the air passages has become excessively irritated, and even permanently thickened, and soon chronic cough, chronic pneumonia, and consumption successively gallop along. The best time to cure all this is when it begins. If you are so fortunate as to possess a case of HUMPHREY'S SPECIFIC HOMEOPATHIC REMEDIES, and if you do not you ought to, at once take a COUGH PILL, and then two or three pills per day, with care as to renewed exposure, will bring you all right in a day or two.

If your cough has got further along, then more care and more patience is necessary for a cure, though it lays in the same direction. Our advice is to keep the feet warm, the head cool, and take HUMPHREY'S HOMEOPATHIC COUGH PILLS.

Price 25 cents per box, with directions; six boxes $1. N. B.—A full set of HUMPHREY'S HOMEOPATHIC SPECIFICS, with book of directions and twenty Remedies, in large eight-drachm vials, and morocco case, $5; do. in plain case, $4; family case of 15 boxes and book, $2.

The Remedies by the single box or full case, sent to any address by mail or express, free of charge, on receipt of the price. Address

NOTICE IS HEREBY GIVEN THAT BOOKS for the subscription of $250,000 as additional stock to the MECHANICS' BANK of Missouri, at St. Louis, will be opened at the Bank of America, in this City, on and after Monday, the 24th inst.

The authorized capital of this Bank is $1,500,000, of which $767,425 has been taken and paid up by the citizens of Missouri. This Bank has been in operation over two years—was the only Bank west of the Mississippi that did not suspend specie payments in 1857. Regular half-yearly dividends of five per cent. have been declared, with an accumulated surplus of $100,000. The charter is liberal in its provisions, has not the personal liability clause, and has 25 years to run. St. Louis is considered one of the best and best points in the West for Banking operations. But few better opportunities for investment are offered. The attention of capitalists and others is called to the subject. Ten per cent will be required to be paid as the time of subscribing, the residue within the next ensuing year, as the Directors may call on due notice, but may all be paid up at the time, at the option of the subscriber. Pro rata dividends will be paid to subscribers from the day of payment. Dividends to Eastern stockholders will be paid in New-York. Persons desiring other and further information, will obtain the same by applying at the Bank of America.
J. W. WILLS, President.
NEW-YORK, Oct. 22, 1859.

PROPOSALS.

FREE BRIDGE OVER HARLEM RIVER.
NOTICE TO CONTRACTORS.—SEALED PROposals will be received until the 23d day of November inst., at 12 M., by the "Commissioners for removing obstructions from the Harlem River, and building a free bridge over the same," for building a draw-pier for the new bridge on the site of Macomb's Dam. The plans and specifications can be seen at W. H. Florence's, Macomb's Dam, and at which place blank propositions will be furnished to contractors. All propositions must be filled out in accordance with the blanks furnished, inclosed in a sealed envelope, directed to Edward H. Tracy, Engineer, and left at the office of Lewis G. Morris, No. 5 Tryon-row. The propositions must be accompanied by the written consent of two responsible parties, who will sign a bond for $5,000 for the faithful performance of the contract if it shall be awarded to the proposer. The Commissioners reserve the right to reject any or all propositions which they may think are not for the interest of the City of New-York and the County of Westchester to accept.
EDWARD H. TRACY, Engineer.
MACOMB'S DAM, Nov. 12, 1859.

PROPOSALS FOR FENCING.—THE STATEN ISLAND RAILROAD COMPANY will receive proposals until the 25th inst., at their office No. 2 Bowling-green, for building fences along the line of their Road. Parties will state the price per rod for furnishing all materials, and building a substantial post and board or post and rail fence, according to the specifications in the Company's office.

PUBLIC NOTICES.

WASTE OF CROTON WATER.
CROTON AQUEDUCT DEPARTMENT, Nov. 12, 1859.
The Croton Aqueduct Board being charged by law with the protection of the supply of water for the City, and it necessary again to call the attention of the inhabitants to the extraordinary waste which is committed.
It is believed upon sufficient data that not less than thirteen millions of gallons are wasted every day. When it is considered that the total quantity which can be brought into the City for the present is but thirty millions of gallons daily, this amount of waste seems altogether unjust and inexcusable. If but one half of this can be prevented by the very simple practice of a reasonable economy, the supply will be adequate to all emergencies.
This extravagant abuse in the consumption of water is not confined to any particular points of draught, but is universal. Reckless profusion in its use is permitted by heads of families in every department of domestic life, as well as in public buildings and manufactories, and probably results in a greater amount of waste in the former than in the latter. Another and most extravagant source of waste in cold weather, is the practice of permitting the water, both in private houses and in stores, to run day and night in order to prevent its freezing in the pipes. This can be prevented by drawing off the water from the pipes in the houses at night, or whenever it is not in active use. A faucet on the pipe at its entrance into a building is all the fixture that is necessary for this purpose.
All continuous streams of water for any purpose whatever, all self-acting, standing or sitting fixtures discharging quantities of water enormously disproportioned to the amount required for any legitimate purpose, and all other sources of waste, can be prevented by proper care, and are therefore required so to be, under the penalties provided by the City ordinances.
Wasteful practices are as unnecessary, in fact, as they are unjust to the honest consumer, who is thereby deprived of his proportion of the general supply.
The public is notified that in obedience to their duty, the Board find it imperatively necessary to exercise increased vigilance. Reports will be made daily of every description of waste, when the proper fines will be exacted, and the water will be cut off from every house, whether public or private, in which it is allowed. When the supply is cut off, it will not be renewed until the expense attending it be paid, and satisfactory assurances given that no further waste will be permitted.
By order of the Board.
THOMAS B. TAPPEN,
Commissioner.

CITY OF NEW-YORK—DEPARTMENT OF FINANCE.—BUREAU OF THE RECEIVER OF TAXES.—OFFICE OF THE RECEIVER OF TAXES, New Court House, No. 32 Chambers-st.—New-York, Nov. 3, 1859.—TO TAX PAYERS.—Notice is hereby given that 1 per cent. will be added on the 1st of December on all taxes remaining unpaid. THE HARPER'S FERRY OUTBREAK.

Meeting of Colored Citizens of New-York—Arrest of a Southern Agent, &c.

THE COLORED PEOPLE'S VIEW OF THE HARPER'S FERRY INVASION.

A MEETING IN SPRING-STREET HALL.

A meeting of about thirty-five colored persons convened at Spring-street Hall last evening, in response to a call for "All those who love liberty better than Slavery," to hear an address from Mr. J. J. SIMONS, upon the attempted insurrection at Harper's Ferry.

Mr. JAMES GARDNER, a colored gentleman, opened the meeting with a brief address.

Mr. SIMONS, the lecturer of the evening, commenced by stating that he spoke for himself, and not for others. He knew of no people who had been treated with the same injustice as had been meted out to the black race. If they were to have redress they should commence now, and do for themselves as the founders of this great nation had done—secure their own liberties. The Christian philanthrophy of the Democratic Party told them it was right to sell men, and separate families on the auction block, and at the same time told them to stop agitation and the South would in time abolish Slavery. He had no sympathy with the Democratic Party, for it was a Pro-Slavery Party. JOHN BROWN had too much humanity. If the blacks had led the movement there would have been a different story to tell. The blacks were not to convince the white people that they were good servants, but were to act in behalf of themselves and their God, and their condition would be better. They had the power to make themselves respected as men and change their condition. He was prepared to fight with white men on behalf of his native soil, and he asked the white man to be as well prepared to fight for the liberty of the black. How long should they remain fettered and bound? Could they remain enslaved consistently? No: the day had arrived for them to convince their oppressors that they were their equals. If they concentrated their efforts their divisions would not be the boast of their opponents. It was time to speak and act as men had acted before them. There were men of color capable of meeting on terms of equality the Senators at Washington. Why should they succumb? Prayers and talking would not win—they must meet the white man face to face and show that they were men. They should learn to smell powder, and not until they had learned that could they enjoy liberty. What did he care if the Satanic Press should misrepresent him in the morning? He did not wish to create insurrection in the South, but he knew that there were many John Browns not hung, and would feel himself honored could he be a candidate for the gallows under such circumstances. The Democratic Party would be blotted out of existence in 1860. The Republican Party was not doing all it could, but it was the only party with a sympathy for the black. Prayers for the slaveholder would not do much good; the best prayers for them would be powder and shot. [Applause.] They had tried it long enough, and their cheeks had been well watered, "crying for them devils down South." Whenever JOHN BROWN was hung, and the last breath left his body, the best thing Gov. WISE could do would be to prepare for himself death; he couldn't be President of the United States. He thought WISE would meet the same fate as "bully BROOKS." He had seen the likenesses of the Virginia Jurymen who had tried BROWN, and they were bad fellows if their likenesses were good. Gov. WISE was as patriotic as PIERCE in storming Greytown. The speaker would rather see the black race swept from the country than have them remain enslaved. He did not believe the soldiers of the North would fight against the blacks struggling for liberty. For his own part he would advise each black man to purchase a musket, keep it in his house, and use it when necessary. He was willing to die any time for rescuing a fugitive slave—let them never let a fugitive slave return. [Applause.] The Herrld had never spoken the truth about the blacks, the Tribune, he said, was next in holiness to the Bible, and the TIMES, in his opinion, had turned somersets like the nigger minstrels in Broadway; it had now come round and was a little merciful to them. The niggers would have to lick some white men before they could be respected. The devil could not be affected by praying. If the colored clergy would enlighten the people more and pray less there would be more good done. He regretted that he was not JOHN BROWN, and, in conclusion, hoped that they would not forget to keep their powder dry, each get a gun, and do it at once, so as to be prepared for the blow for their own liberties.

At the conclusion of Mr. SIMON'S speech, Mr. JAMES GARDNER delivered an off-hand telling address, relating his own escape from Slavery, urging the blacks to act in concert to secure their own liberties, and cautioning them not to trust any but themselves in so important a matter. He frequently brought down the house with his ready wit and aptness of illustration.

ARREST AND COMMITTAL OF DR. W. R. PALMER, AT MEMPHIS, TENN.—CORRESPONDENCE, &c.

Dr. WM. R. PALMER was arrested and taken before Justice HORNE, at Memphis, on Wednesday last, on a charge of being concerned in the Harper's Ferry conspiracy. After a thorough examination into all the facts of the case, PALMER was committed in default of $2,500 bail to take his trial at the District Court. We subjoin the following correspondence, which was developed on the examination:

LETTER FROM THE AID-DE-CAMP OF GOV. WISE.

EXECUTIVE DEPARTMENT, RICHMOND, Oct. 25, 1859.

To His Excellency the Governor of Tennessee:

SIR: I am instructed by the Governor of this Commonwealth to inclose to you copies of letters and papers received by him from an anonymous writer, who signs himself a "A Traveler." Although they reached him from an irresponsible source, he feels it to be his duty to inform you of their contents, that you may judge for yourself of their importance, in the present excited state of the public mind.

Very respectfully,
WM. MUNFORD,
Aid-de-Camp and Military Secretary.

"A TRAVELER'S" LETTER.

NEW-YORK, Oct. 23, 1859.

DEAR SIR: While in the cars to-day on a passage from Philadelphia to New-York, a young man who occupied the seat first in front of me, got up to go out at one of the way stations. He had an overcoat on his arm; I thought I saw something fall from the side-pocket of his overcoat as he started. On looking over into the seat I discovered he had dropped two letters and a memorandum. I took them up, but too late to give them to him, as the cars had started again. I discovered a sealed letter to Capt. J. BROWN, Harper's Ferry, and having my curiosity excited on account of the coincidence of the address with that of BROWN, the insurrectionist, I was led to read the other side, addressed to WM. HORNBE, which had been opened. When I found it was satisfied from reading this letter, that the sealed letter was for BROWN, the Harper's Ferry insurrectionist you now have under arrest. As I suspect the contents of that letter to be of an incendiary character, I have concluded to send them to you for disposal; I therefore send them just as I found them, inclosed in the same envelope with this note. If there be incendiarism in the letter to BROWN, it may be of service to you, and if not, Captain Brown cannot be injured by receiving it at your hands. In this matter I feel that I act only as a good citizen, and a lover of the Union. I hope you will not feel offended at my sending this as an anonymous note. I do so simply because I do not wish my name in any manner connected with BROWN or Harper's Ferry.

Yours respectfully, TRAVELER.

To Hon. Gov. H. A. WISE.

LAWRENCE THATCHER'S LETTER.

MEMPHIS, Tenn., Oct. 3, 1859.

To Capt. A. Brown, General Commander-in-Chief of the Provisional Government, United States Army.

DEAR CAPT.: I have just completed my tour through the Southern States, and am on my way to Kentucky. In my last letter to you I mentioned that I should give the States of Tennessee and Arkansas a thorough scouring. I did so, and am satisfied that of all the States of the South, Tennesse and Arkansas are the best fitted to make the first strike in. These two States have but few whites in favor of Slavery—while they contain an immense number of slaves already ripe, and ready at the first intimation to strike a decided blow for their freedom; while the large mass of the whites are against Slavery, and will be ready to assist them at a moment's warning. Several of them stated to me that they had gone so far as to prepare arms for their slaves, and instruct them in their use, and how to act when the worst comes to the worst. While at Brownsville, Tenn., I addressed a letter to the school teacher, Mr. H——, and he came to Brownsville to see me.

He says there is no avocation in which a man can do so much good for our cause as that of school-teaching, because all the country around have so much confidence in a school-teacher who conducts himself right. He says that the large majority of colored people in his part of the State are ready to take up arms at a moment's warning, and a large number of whites are ready to join them. He says we must send out more well-qualified men to the South as school-teachers, and work them in everywhere. He gave me a letter of introduction to your friend, Mr. PALMER, who is an extensive farmer near Shelby Depôt, on the Brownsville Railroad. I did not get out at that depôt, for on inquiring of a passenger in the cars, I learned that Mr. PALMER did not then live on his plantation, on account of a difficulty between himself and wife, and an injunction on his property, and a writ pending a divorce, and that he would be hard to find; so I concluded to go on.

When I arrived at Memphis, I accidentally met Mr. PALMER at the hotel where I stopped. I handed him Mr. H.'s letter. After reading it, he cordially shook my hand, and invited me to take a walk with him. We went up to a place on the bank of the river, called the old Navy-Yard, and took a seat on some logs in a secluded place, where he said we could talk freely. He said he had freely sympathized with you, Captain, in all your troubles, as he had been a martyr of slaveholders himself. He said he had been working silently, but steadily, for our cause for two years, and that he had married a widow who had a number of slaves, for the purpose of establishing himself in the good opinion and confidence of the slaveholders about him. That he had at first intended, at the first good opportunity, to transfer all the slaves he had got in his possession by marrying, to our friends by way of Cincinnati; and that he had a great many more, belonging to his neighbors, that were ready to go with them; but a difficulty had occurred between himself and wife, and that she had, with the secret advice of several slaveholders and scoundrels about his plantation, suddenly ejected him from the place, and without a moment's warning. That she was still suing her for his rights by marriage, and that the Supreme Court had given a decree in his favor; and that he would soon be in possession of his slaves again; and that when he again got full control of them he would, at a favorable moment, arm them and between four and five hundred more, and make a start in the night time from Memphis. That he had friends in Cincinnati who had promised to have one of the largest and swiftest steamers on the river sent to tie up and wait for them at the mouth of Hatchie river, under the pretense of undergoing repairs.

That he had all his arrangements complete, and, whenever he said the word, could take from 50 to 1,000 at a trip, and land them safely at Cairo, in the swamps of Indiana, where they would at once be free. I found Mr. P. a very bold schemer, and a man of good address and winning manners, and the very man for our purposes; and as it is known he is a slaveholder himself, no one would for a moment suspect him for being concerned with our cause. I showed him our constitution for the Provisional Government, with which he was much pleased, and I advised him not to make the stampede of slaves he expected to make, but to keep them at work, secretly preparing each other, and as many others as they could get to join them for our October strike. He said he would do so, and that he could guarantee 1,000 armed slaves who would be ready to spring together at a moment's call, and that as soon as operations were commenced with them, that other slaves would flock to them by thousands wherever they went, through all parts of the State. He is very severe on a doctor in his neighborhood, who has been appointed by the Court as receiver of his property, and I am afraid his anger towards this man will cause him to be guilty of some rash act, which will expose his plan of operations. I told him he hadn't ought to give too loose reins to his passions, but curb it until the proper time. He says this doctor was the adviser of his wife, and had himself appointed receiver, so as to frustrate all his plans, but that he would disappoint him yet; and that, once he had him in his power, he would not spare him one drop of blood in existence. He said that this doctor had dishonored his marriage bed; but that he did not care for, as he did not care for his wife, as she was a Southern fool; that the position her property gave him, and the power to effect his end, was all he asked for; but that Doctor had interfered with him in other ways, for which he would yet have his heart's blood. I warned him to be not so blood-thirsty, and, in all he did, not to spill blood, unless in self-defence or in fighting for Freedom. He said that, though born in North Carolina, he had from a child hated Slavery, and that, in spending a number of years at the North, he had learned to appreciate the philanthropic motives of our friends, and that he had pledged himself to work faithfully to the end ever since. He said he had great influence over most of the slaves in his part of Tennessee, and that he often met them on the roads and by-places, and had long talks with them, and that he always found them ripe for the cause. Mr. P. then returned to the hotel with me, and in the evening introduced me to several merchants and others, in Memphis, who were with us heart and hand.

From my interview with Mr. PALMER, I judge him to be a shrewd man, and through his position and influence well calculated to become one of our principal leaders in the South. He seems to thoroughly understand the Railroad business. I would scarcely expect to find in a Southern city situated as Memphis is, in the midst of a cotton-growing country, so large a number of whites ready to aid us, and strike when necessary for our cause.

Mr. PALMER says you must write to him every week and keep him posted as to our plans, and he will act in concert with us, in everything you may direct.

I think he is a brave and conscientious man, and you need not fear him. He has, no doubt, been severely abused where he lives, and his wrongs have made him desperate. I have been through a large portion of Arkansas, and have found we have but few friends among the whites in that State, as most of them are blood-thirsty slaveholders; but the slaves are all willing and ready, and so far outnumber the whites that a bold stroke of one day will overthrow the whole State. I leave Memphis to-morrow, by way of Clarksville, for Mammoth Cave, where I wish to be for a number of days before anything comes off there. WM. HORNER has just arrived here from New-Orleans on his way to Harper's Ferry. Nothing could have happened better for me. I guess I must be in a streak of good luck. I feared to write particulars to you by mail for the danger of interception. But as WILLIAM is here I write you in full and trust it to his care.

He swears to me that he will deliver it to you in person, or die trying. He is a good boy and may be depended upon. Now, I say, be cautious, and let us have a strike soon. It cannot come too quick, for I believe from what I have seen that the whole South is ready for it. I have to be very careful here, as the people are very suspicious of Northern men. I sometimes register one name and then another, to suit the circumstances, as I travel about. Sometimes I pass for a traveling preacher, and at others as a New-Orleans merchant, looking at the crops and talking of speculation in cotton, etc. Southern people are easily gulled. If there will be any failure in the Harper's Ferry strike, let me know in time. You shall hear from me soon. Yours, faithfully,
LAWRENCE THATCHER.

P. S.—Mr. PALMER says you must address your letters to him as follows:

Dr. W. RUSSELL PALMER, Green Bottom, Shelby County, Tenn.

LFTTER FROM DR. HOWE ON HIS CONNECTION WITH THE AFFAIR.

Dr. S. G. HOWE, of Boston, publishes the following letter in the Atlas and Bee of yesterday:

BOSTON, Monday, Nov. 14, 1859.

Rumor has mingled my name with the events at Harper's Ferry. So long as it rested on such absurdities as letters written to me by Col. FORBES, or others, it was too idle for notice. But when complicity is distinctly charged by one of the parties engaged, my friends beseech me to define my position; and I consent, the less reluctantly, because I divest myself of what, in time, might be considered an honor, and I want no undeserved ones.

As regards Mr. COOK, to the best of my knowledge and belief, I never saw him; never even heard of him until since the outbreak at Harper's Ferry. That event was unforeseen and unexpected by me; nor does all my previous knowledge of JOHN BROWN enable me to reconcile it with his characteristic prudence, and his reluctance to shed blood, or excite servile insurrection. It is still, to me, a mystery and a marvel.

As to the heroic man who planned and led that forlorn hope, my relations with him in former times were such as no one ought to be afraid or ashamed to avow. If ever my testimony to his high qualities can be of use to him or his, it shall be forthcoming at the fitting time and place. But neither this nor any other testimony shall be extorted for unrighteous purposes, if I can help it.

There are, among the statutes of our Union, certain weapons, concealed as are the claws of the cat, in a velvet paw, which are seemingly harmless, but are really deadly instruments by which we of the North may be forced to uphold and defend the barbarous system of human Slavery. For instance, a dishonest judge, in the remotest South, or in far-off California, may, upon the affidavit of any white person that the testimony of any citizen of Massachusetts is wanted in a criminal suit, send a Marshal, who may bail such citizen before the judge, and there, among strangers, to recognize for his appearance in court, or be committed to jail. Upon the stand, such expressions of opinion may be drawn from him, as will mark him for an Abolitionist, and turn him out of the Court-house to the tender mercies of a people once called chivalrous and generous, but among whom the love of fair play seems rapidly dying out. Such martyrdom might be coveted by some, if any high purpose were to be gained by it; but it is especially undesirable when the testimony is not sought with open and righteous, but with false and revengeful purpose.

I am told by high legal authority, that Massachusetts is so trammeled by the bonds of the Union that, as matters now stand, she cannot, or dare not, protect her citizens from such forcible extradition; and that each one must protect himself, as he best may. Upon that hint I shall act; preferring to forego anything rather than the right to free thought and free speech.

Yours, faithfully, S. G. HOWE.

PERSONAL.

John Mitchel writes a second letter of his series from Paris to the Irishman, counseling the "nationalists" of Ireland "to be prepared." He expects ere long to see Gibraltar, as the key of the Mediterranean, and San Juan, as the key of the Columbian Archipelago, wrested from "the swindler and usurer of nations," England; then he adds, on behalf of his brother "Celts"—"happy if we can but prepare ourselves to rise to our own feet and stand erect upon our own soil when the felonious gripe is loosened from our throats."

A letter from Paris in Le Nord, dated the 28th, states that Mr. Cobden had had an interview with the Emperor on the previous day. The same letter states that Lord Brougham was at Paris, and going to stay there a few days on his way to Cannes, whereas on the 28th Lord Brougham addressed an evening meeting at Newcastle.

The Paris correspondent of the London News says of Napoleon's autograph letter to Victor Emanuel: "I have strong reasons to know that the Emperor himself was a party to its publication in an indirect manner."

Mr. Rarey of late has been giving gratuitous exhibitions of horse-taming to the carters, cab, and omnibus men of Glasgow.

Literary Notice.

HARRY LEE; OR, HOPE FOR THE POOR. HARPER & BROS.

When book readers shall have finished and discussed the great books of great writers, rested for awhile and taken breath, they will turn to this humbler touching tale of "poverty's wooing" and learn to love its unknown author. It deals not in scenes of a hundred years ago, but of our own time, and with no theologic aims seeks to render useful those views which are now received. It is altogether undenominational and is aglow with a truly Catholic Christian spirit. Though not written for criticism the author has given an earnest of power and pathos which will render her writings ever acceptable. The book will meet, as it merits, an extensive sale, and benefit that most excellent charity, the Newsboys' Lodging House. It should have a place in every American parlor, nor should any popular or religious library be without a copy.

UNITED STATES MARSHAL TYLER CONVICTED.—The trial of United States Marshal TYLER, of Detroit, for shooting Capt. JONES, of the brig Concord, took place in the Circuit Court of St. Clair County, Mich., last week, and resulted in a verdict of murder in the second degree. Counsel for the State, Messrs. H. MCALPIN, JACOB M. HOWARD, and H. D. TERRY. For the prisoner, Messrs. ALFRED RUSSELL, of Detroit, and J. C. CULLEN, of Port Huron. It will be recollected that TYLER had been tried for the same offence before the United States District Court in Detroit, and was let off with but slight fine and imprisonment. The case has excited no little interest and feeling in this quarter, and the verdict of the St. Clair Jury better comports with public sentiment than that of the previous one of manslaughter.

CITY POLITICS.

The Mayor and City Patronage.

There would appear to be a very general disposition amongst certain journals to censure the Mayor for a partisan administration of the City patronage, and to hold him responsible for the character of certain obnoxious subordinates employed in several departments of the City Government. We do not think the censure on either of these points well founded, and believe that a fair statement of the case is due to the Mayor as a simple act of justice, and that such a statement will go far to set him right in the public mind.

The present Mayor, it is true, was nominated and elected by an independent opposition—largely, no doubt, consisting of Republicans and Native American, but also with important accessions from the respectable adherents of Tammany Hall, who had become disgusted with the One-man power and general civic irregularities engendered by the preceding Mayor. It was a common rising against a common enemy; and it was thought essential to success by the coalition thus formed, to place a man of well-known Democratic principles and antecedents in command of the newly organized force.

No one acquainted with City politics could have entertained the least hope of success against FERNANDO WOOD in the last Municipal contest, had the nominee of the opposition been otherwise than a Democrat of recognized strength in his own party, and of good personal antecedents, to satisfy and invite the neutral vote. It was because the present Mayor fulfilled these requisites that he was selected as standard-bearer; and judging him from this point of view, we think no fault can be found with the general tenor of such appointments as he has made himself.

The first civic department which the Mayor organized was the Street Department; and we believe the public have good reason to be satisfied with the operations of that office. To appoint a Street Commissioner, the concurrence of a majority of the Board of Alderman was requisite; and that majority being Democratic—elected on Democratic nominations, pure and simple—it was not possible to secure their assent to any other than a Democratic nominee. In this emergency Mr. EDWARD COOPER consented to accept the place, resigning for the time valuable private business, worth many times the amount of his civic salary; and of the Heads of Bureaux appointed by him, it is enough to quote the names of Messrs. CORLIES and SCHIEFFELLIN to show that the Republican element of the present Mayor's constituency had a fair representation in the patronage of the Street Department.

The main work of that office done, and the contesting claims of Messrs. CONOVER and DEVLIN settled, Mr. COOPER naturally wished to be relieved from his onerous duties and the heavy personal sacrifices which the appointment involved. It became necessary to again induce a majority of the Board of Aldermen to confirm a Street Commissioner nominated by the Mayor; and the Republican Superintendents of Bureaux, comprehending the necessities of the case fully, and being men independent of office, very generously, and of their independent motion, resigned their own positions, in order to place so much additional patronage at the disposal of the Mayor, for the purpose of enabling him to secure Aldermanic consent to the proposed change. In this way Street Commissioner SMITH was at last confirmed—the Republicans ceasing to have a head of Bureau in the Street Department, but a full and fair share of Republican clerks being still retained in that office.

In the City Inspectorship case, name after name was sent in by Mayor TIEMANN and rejected by the Democratic majority of the Board of Aldermen. The Mayor, in regard to this office, neither knew nor wished to know the political proclivities of the men whom he recommended; but sent in their names exclusively on the ground of "professional fitness," as vouched to him by a number of our most eminent physicians, who had been called into council with him on this subject. The first name sent in was that of Dr. FOSTER, who turned out to be a Republican; but the office was finally given to Col. DELAVAN, as the only fit and proper person in whose favor the Democratic Aldermanic majority could be induced to vote. Over the sub-appointments made by the City Inspector since his confirmation, the Mayor has exercised no control, and has not had, we believe, the naming of a single man. Rumor adds, moreover, that the City Inspector himself is not morally, though legally, responsible for seven-eighths of the subordinates saddled on the City Treasury through his Department. The Aldermanic majority took all such business off his hands before confirming him, and the only power left to him is that of removal for satisfactory cause.

We might cite the Croton Board as an example of the Mayor's freedom from illiberal Democratic partisanship wherever he himself was allowed control. Mr. ALFRED W. CRAVEN'S reappointment was certainly a concession to the Republican element, and Mr. THOMAS B. TAPPEN, the Democratic member, has been steadily overbalanced in the distribution of Croton patronage. Mr. CRAVEN had personal claims on some prominent Democrats, and it was solely owing to this influence that the Mayor, however willing, had power in the Board of Aldermen to do justice in this case.

As to certain worthless and disreputable Democratic Ward politicians of the shoulder and porter-house class, alleged to be still retained in the Street and City Inspector's Departments, it is enough to say that the Mayor was not consulted as to their appointment in the first instance, and has no legal power to insist on their removal, as matters stand. All that he can do, he is doing; and already some of the most obnoxious employes have been made walk the official plank. Moreover, as we learn, many of the rowdies put down to the City Government are not so employed, but draw monthly retaining-fees from the Federal branch of Democratic patronage. It is but justice to Mayor TIEMANN that these things should be known, as the City is certainly indebted to his services in no common degree, and as an attempt appears in progress to deprive him of that honest recognition which is the only recompense he has sought.

MOZART HALL MAYORALTY CONVENTION.

NOMINATION OF FERNANDO WOOD.

The Mozart Hall Mayoralty Convention met again last evening according to appointment. In order to avoid a repetition of the scenes of Monday night, tickets were issued to each delegate, bearing the name of GILBERT DEAN, Chairman. The Convention was called to order by Judge DEAN, and Messrs. LIVINGSTON and GARRICK were chosen Secretaries. A viva voce vote resulted in the unanimous nomination of FERNANDO WOOD as candidate for the Mayoralty. JAMES LYNCH was then named for Almshouse Commissioner, and Messrs. Stephen P. Russell, Isaac Lawrence, Francis Fleet, John Boyd and Stephen Lynch were apointed a committee to wait upon the candidates and inform them of their nomination. A committee of one from each Ward was also appointed to make preparations for a ratification meeting.

The proceedings were very harmonious. A large crowd collected outside of the hall, in hopes of being admitted to the meeting, but none but the holders of the little red tickets were successful. After the Convention had adjourned, Mr. WM. WILSON commenced to speak, but the extinction of the gas brought his remarks to a sudden conclusion.

POLL-LISTS FOR THE DECEMBER ELECTION.

In accordance with the notice previously given, the County Registrars appeared yesterday, at one o'clock, at the chamber of the Board of Supervisors, to obtain the poll-lists in order to make out a new registry for the December election. As most of the canvassers in the State election had sealed up their lists in the same package with their returns, and as the Supervisors alone are authorized to open the returns, the Registrars of the first three Wards were the only ones who obtained the lists. The following correspondence has passed on the subject:

NEW-YORK, Nov. 15, 1859.

Nelson J. Waterbury, Esq., Attorney, &c.

DEAR SIR: It appears that the poll-lists for most of the Election Districts of this City are sealed up with the election returns. As it was necessary for the Inspectors of Registry to have the lists to make up the Registry lists in accordance with the law passed at the last session of the Legislature, we have endeavored in vain to procure to-day a vote of the Board of Supervisors to open all the returns, in order that the poll-lists may be taken out and furnished to the Inspectors of Registry for the respective Districts. Under these circumstances, as the County Clerk cannot furnish the poll-lists, what course of action would you reccommend in the matter?

Yours, respectfully,
E. F. PURDY, President Board of Supervisors.

DISTRICT-ATTORNEY'S OFFICE, Nov. 15, 1859.

Elijah F. Purdy, Esq., President Board of Supervisors.

DEAR SIR: In answer to your letter of this day, I would respectfully recommend that the Boards of Registry not furnished with the poll-lists should adjourn from day to day until they are furnished with the poll-lists by the County Clerk, and that they should then proceed, without delay, to make out the registry of voters according to law.

Yours, truly,
NELSON J. WATERBURY.

TUESDAY, Nov. 15—P. M.

The Stock Market was again inactive to-day and the speculation of the Street quite dull, except on one or two Stocks, Panama being most buoyant, and further advancing 3 ₱ cent. The price realized 128 ₱ cent. this afternoon, with little or no abatement in the demand. The rise is thus made 6 ₱ cent. in less than a week. In the other Railways prices are generally steady, and the efforts at depression by contract and other sales for the Bear account, during the present comparatively dull term, make but little success. Chicago and Rock Island and Hudson River partially advanced on Monday's rates, while New-York Central sold steadily at 80 ₱ cent., the business being confined to about 1,000 shares. Scarcely a transaction took place on the Street between the sessions of the Board, and much surprise is expressed that the market refuses to yield to such unusual dullness in speculation for the rise. Galena and Chicago left off 71¾@72 ₱ cent.; the two Michigan roads at yesterday's rates. Illinois Central, in which the speculators for the fall have been indulging somewhat freely for a week or so past, was sold down to 61½ ₱ cent. In the absence of any encouragement to sell the Scrip Stock at $21½ for $60 paid, a rumor is started that another assessment will soon be demanded, though no intimation of the call has yet been given from the office. As the October interest was paid without calling upon the stockholders, and the immediate finances of the Company are understood to be easy, the payment of another instalment is probably three or four months off, and when it comes it will be for the liquidation of a temporary loan of £150,000 made in London last Spring, when the New-York Board expressed a preference for a $5 call on the Scrip, but were overruled by the London Committee. That negotiation cost the Company a higher rate of interest than the managers are willing to pay again, and it will not be renewed, as at present advised, on like terms. Under the circumstances we believe that the alternative of an assessment on the Scrip would enhance, rather than depreciate, the Scrip shares. The last sales in London (reported by the Hungarian) were at 37½ @¾ discount. An order from Canada for several thousand shares was filled in this market a week or ten days since. The amount now at the command of the Brokers is 9,500 shares out of a capital of 175,000 shares. The Bonds of the Company continue in steady demand at 81¾@85 ₱ cent. The Bonds of the Erie Company advanced to day 1@1½ ₱ cent. on the third mortgage, and 2 ₱ cent. on the fourth, with a large demand for the former. The common Bonds sold at 24 ₱ cent. Hudsons first and second mortgages steady; the thirds lost 1 ₱ cent. of the advance of last week. The Brooklyn Water Loan has gone up 2 ₱ cent. Harlems are well held, and but few offered at the Board. State Stocks were barely steady to-day. The Coal shares are firm for Pennsylvania and Delaware and Hudson. The Anthracite trade is generally active, and the Miners' Journal of Saturday (usually a cautious authority in regard to the prices and prospects of the business) reports more encouragingly than for some months past. Of the increased tonnage this season, the most liberal share relatively falls to the Delaware and Hudson Canal. The following is the statement, furnished this afternoon, of Coal transported on the Delaware and Hudson Canal during the week ending 12th inst., for the season to same date, and during the corresponding periods last year:

	1859. Week.	1858. Week.	Increase.
Del. & Hud. Canal Co.	16,424	10,628	5,797
Pennsylvania Coal Co.	20,402	18 793	1,609
Total tons	36,827	29,421	7,406
	1859. Season.	1858. Season.	Increase.
Del. & Hud. Canal Co.	546,627	326,498	220,129
Pennsylvania Coal Co.	666,670	604,580	62,090
Total tons	1,213,297	931,078	282,219

The market for Money keeps easy on temporary loan to the Brokers, owing, in part, to the present dullness of employment among the Stock Brokers. Prime indorsed paper is also passed at the usual low rates of 6@7 ₱ cent., according to date, but fair single names are in less favor, owing to the unexpected suspension of a South-street house, noticed yesterday. There is also some difficulty to-day with the joint paper of three or four parties, in fair credit, given out some months since for account of the Kerosene Oil Company, whose building and supplies were about to be enlarged in advance of the demand for their manufactured Oil. The coals used are of a peculiar character, and are imported from North Britain, we believe, and we understand that the embarrassment grows out of the too rapid accumulation of stock on hand. An extension on the paper is to be applied for to-morrow. The Customs duties to-day are $108,000. The other receipts and transfers into the Sub-Treasury, $466,000. The disbursements, $365,000. Balance this afternoon, $5,552,651.

A fair business in the Foreign Exchanges was done for the Boston mail. The leading Bankers were down to 110 ₱ cent. on London at 60 days, and 110½ at sight. Southern Bank and Bank indorsed bills, at 60 days, 109¾@109¾ ₱ cent. The Hamburg steamer to-day took $200,000 in Specie.

The Export of Domestic Produce from this port for the week is $1,504,820, against $1,256,136 same week last season. The Export of Cotton from the Southern ports was 76,000 bales—equal to an Exchange of $4,000,000—against 68,000 bales same week last season. The general crop movement is as follows:

In regard to the crop, Messrs. WRIGHT & Co., in their weekly Circular, say:

"The result of the frost is not yet ascertained from the more distant portions of the Cotton region. Public opinion seems to have become more uniform in looking upon 4,000,000 bales as an outside estimate. The heavy receipts at the ports showing, as they do, an excess of 106,000 bales over the largest quantity ever previously received to corresponding dates, account in a great degree for the continuance of so large an estimate after the occurrence of the killing frost on the 29th, 30th and 31st October. The Southern rivers are all low. The receipts into the ports may be checked for a while from this cause, in which case reduced crop estimates would become general.

The following Grain and Flour receipts for the week ending 7th November, at Toledo, Ohio, are interesting as indicating the extent of business at that Lake port the present season:
